Nantasket Fare Raised

BOAT FARE IS UP 40 PERCENT.

Company Gives Increased Cost of Coal as Cause for Increase in Harbor Tariff

Ten cents more to Nantasket Beach, round-trip in proportion. No using commuters' book-tickets on Sunday boats, either.

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company filed a new schedule of rates today with the Public Service Commission, to take effect May 25, next Saturday.

The new rates:

Boston to Pemberton—Twenty-five cents.

Boston to Hull—Twenty-five cents.

Boston to Nantasket—Thirty-five cents.

The first two rates are the same as the present ones. The big change is the ten-cent increase on one-way trips between Boston and Nantasket Beach. This is forty per cent. jump.

The schedule also provides that the book tickets, used mainly by commuters, shall not be used on Sundays.

The reason given by the steamboat company for its increase in the Boston-Nantasket rate is higher cost of coal. It submits that fuel this year will cost three times as much as it did last.

The reason advanced for barring book tickets on Sunday boats is this. Passengers are checked, or counted, by Federal inspectors. As soon as the boats are filled to regulation capacity the gates are closed. The Sunday traffic usually runs to capacity and more. The company argues that it is unfair to let some travel Sunday at book ticket rates who may days at book ticket rates who may prevent cash-fare passengers at 35 cents apiece from getting aboard.

The coupon books, containing 150 tickets, sell for $35. Three coupons are required for one ride to Nantasket, and two to Pemberton. That figures out at the rate of five and one-third cents a ticket, making the book rate six-ten cents to Nantasket and ten and two-thirds cents to Pemberton.

The new rates go into effect automatically. After the rates become effective the Public Service Commission may, on petition or protest against the new schedule, take the case up and grant hearings.

AMERICAN SUPPLY SHIP SUNK BY MINE OR TORPEDO

By International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—The American cargo carrier J. G. McCullough has been sunk in foreign waters, either by a mine or a torpedo, the Navy Department announced today. All on board with the exception of Engineer Daughtery were rescued.

The McCullough was a 1,943-ton vessel, built at Buffalo, and before the war had sailed from New York. In time of peace she carried a crew of twenty-three.

O'LEARY A FUGITIVE, BAIL IS FORFEITED

New York, May 20.—Jeremiah O'Leary, editor of the Bull, a publication recently suppressed by governmental orders, has disappeared from New York. This fact became known today when he was called for trial with others on charges of violating the espionage act. O'Leary's bond of $5,000 was ordered forfeited.

Wilson Cheered by Bohemians; Siege Is Proclaimed

Zurich, May 20.—A state of siege has been proclaimed at Prague (Bohemia), as a result of anti-German demonstrations during the jubilee of the Czechs and Jugo Slavs at the National Theatre, according to information from an Austrian source today. Processions in the streets cheered President Wilson, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Lloyd George. The police have been powerless, and further trouble is expected.

EVIDENCE OF IRISH PLOT TO BE PUBLISHED

Most of It Will Come From United States, Says London Report

London, May 20.—Ireland was quiet over the week-end, following the revelation of a pro-German plot and the arrest of many Sinn Feiners, according to advices received by the Daily Sketch.

The Times stated that the arrest of persons in Ireland is only a preliminary step in the move to suppress treason.

The Sinn Feiners are said to be expecting a general strike.

Evidence of the existence of a plot is to be published. It was stated it is believed that most of the evidence concerning communication with Germany will come from the United States.

The Countess Markievicz, who was arrested in Ireland, has been lodged in the Holloway Jail in London.

Troops are guarding the government buildings and railways in Cork.

Seventy-three Sinn Feiners were transported at night from Kingstown, the seaport of Dublin, to Holyhead, Wales.

Count George Plunkett, Sinn Fein leader in Ireland, and member of Parliament from Roscommon, is one of the 500 men and women arrested in connection with the alleged German-Irish plot. Count Plunkett played a prominent role in the Dublin Easter rebellion two years ago.

With his arrest, four of the six Sinn Fein members of Parliament have been apprehended. The two others, Ginnell and McCartan, already were in jail when the new plot was discovered. Both are serving sentences of six months. None has ever taken his seat in Parliament.

Mellowes Declares Report of Sinn Fein in Plot Is False

New York, May 20.—"The papers said 500 leaders of the Sinn Fein had been arrested because they were involved in the German plot to invade Ireland. The report is as false as ——," said Colonel Mellowes at a session of the Friends of Irish Freedom in Grand Central Opera House. He was loudly applauded by the audience of 2,000. He continued:

"It was framed up more than three months ago and is being circulated here. Lord French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, was sent to Ireland to retrieve the military reputation he lost in France. Gourkas are now in Ireland to shoot down the defenceless people for this purpose."

PRESIDENT MAKES OVERMAN BILL LAW

Washington, May 20.—President Wilson today signed the Overman bill, under the provisions of which he is given almost unlimited power to reorganize the executive departments of the government.

AIR RAID ON GERMAN CITY

Forty-seven Wounded and Great Damage Done; People Were Panic-Stricken

London, May 20.—The great allied air drive, which has been gathering increased range, force and results for the week past, has scored heavily in a raid on Cologne, Germany, in which twenty-five persons were killed and forty-seven were injured.

A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam, announcing the raid today said that bombs fell in the heart of the city, heavy damage was done and the populace was panic-stricken.

Cologne, with its population in peace times of about a half-million, is located on the west bank of the Rhine and is the capital of the German government district of Cologne.

It is about forty miles east of the German-Belgian border and about 100 miles east from that part of the battle front running northward from Arras to the North Sea.

In raids last week British aviators flew across the Belgian border and dropped bombs in the nighborhood of the big docks at Bruges, while French fliers, in successive flights, went forty miles across Picardy and bombed Hun points at St. Quentin and vicinity. But the announcement today, via Amsterdam, of an effective air raid by the allied fliers clear to Cologne and the Rhine valley shows one of the greatest flights yet, considering the distance and the results reported.

Cologne is a rich target for aerial bombers. It is the largest city in the Rhine provinces, is defended by a fortress of the first class, is the centre of the Rhine trade and has great manufactories. Its products include sugar, tobacco and toilet waters, notably eau de Cologne.

To Patriotic Women of Boston

THE BOSTON AMERICAN is today starting a new department especially for women who desire occupation during the period of the war. It is not an employment agency. It will direct you to places where such information may be given you, answer your questions, give you advice and suggestion. You will find it daily in the Woman's Section. Address your letters to Elizabeth Ellam, and she will help you find the work you want to do.

Red Cross Gets Good Start on Drive

The Red Cross drive got away to a running start in Boston today, when two communities were reported "over the top."

These two banner communities were Peabody and Sherborn, and reports reaching local Red Cross headquarters showed that from the way contributions were rolling in, many more quotas would shortly be filled.

On every hand evidences of the enthusiasm created by the drive were seen, and it is expected that Boston's quota would be tremendously oversubscribed.

Business houses, amusement places and individuals were all co-operating in the work of mercy, and the "Greatest Mother of Them All" is practically assured of securing the amount called for provided interest is maintained.

U. S. SEA PLANES SOON TO CROSS ATLANTIC

Scheme Devised for Parent Ships to Provide Fuel at Rendezvous

Washington, May 20.—American sea planes, under their own power, shortly will fly across the Atlantic. This will be one of the biggest contributions of the United States to the war. These machines already are traveling the air from the factory and to ports of departure. American aviators have been anxious to make the complete trip across, but they have been held up because of the problem of fuel. Now a plan has been devised whereby parent ships will be sent out to certain agreed stations. They will furnish oil and gas to the planes, which will make the trip on a regular schedule.

Just when the new idea will be put into effect cannot be now stated. In their proposed flights the American sea planes will have the complete co-operation of the British and Canadian authorities. Starting and landing stages are to be constructed at agreed on points, while the British cruiser squadron which patrols the steamship lanes of the North Atlantic will keep watch for the planes.

London, May 20.—Thirty persons were killed and wounded in food riots at Pavlovsky (twenty-eight miles east of Moscow), said a delayed telegram from Moscow today. The soviet building was burned.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES FOR UNITED SHOE

Absolved From Charges of Being a Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade

By International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—The United Shoe Machinery Company was held not to be a conspiracy in restraint of trade by the Supreme Court this afternoon.

12 REPORTED KILLED IN NEBRASKA TORNADO

Omaha, May 20.—Twelve persons were killed and twenty-five injured in a tornado at Bloomfield, Neb., Saturday night, according to word that reached here today. The wrecking of all telephone and telegraph wires caused a thirty-six-hour delay in getting news from the stricken region.

All the dead and injured lived on farms. More than 200 head of horses, cattle and hogs are also reported dead.

DEGREE FOR DANIELS BY RUTGERS COLLEGE

New York, May 20. — Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the one hundred and fifty-second commencement of Rutgers College tomorrow. Secretary Daniels probably will speak at the alumni dinner in the afternoon. Rutgers will award forty-two undergraduate degrees, as compared with seventy-seven last year. Class Day exercises will be held today.

Major Lufbery Killed

AIR HERO DOWNED 18 PLANES

Birdman From Wallingford, Ct., Was to Retire From Battle and Train Fliers

By International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—Major Raoul Lufbery was "killed in flight during which he had been in combat," according to General Pershing's official communique, made public this afternoon by the War Department.

Lufbery, says the communique, was seen to fall from his machine, which dropped a short distance away from him. He was either wounded or dead before he fell, according to General Pershing.

Earlier reports were that Lufbery had met his death while engaged in a running fight, and was flying upside down at the time. This was denied by the communique.

The communique also reveals how Private Henry Johnson and Private Roberts saved their sector from being captured by the Germans early in the morning of May 15. The two Americans were doing sentry duty when they were attacked by a raiding party of about twenty Huns. The Americans fought desperately and succeeded in beating off the entire party.

American aviators brought down two hostile machines on Saturday.

THE AMERICAN COMMUNIQUE.

The American official communique:

"Headquarters American Expeditionary Forces, May 19, 1918:

"Section A—Aside from the activity of the air forces on both sides, the day was quiet as all points occupied by our troops. Our aviators brought down two hostile machines.

"Section H—Reports in hand show a notable instance of bravery and devotion shown by two soldiers of an American colored regiment operating in a French sector. Before daylight on May 15, Private Henry Johnson and Private Roberts, while on sentry duty at some distance from one another, were attacked by a German raiding party, estimated at twenty men, who advanced in two groups attacking at once from flank and rear.

"Both men fought bravely in hand-to-hand encounters, one resorting to the use of a bolo knife after his rifle jammed and further fighting with bayonet and butt became impossible. There is evidence that at least one and probably a second German was severely cut. A third is known to have been shot.

"Attention is drawn to the fact that

50,000 IN CHICAGO HIT THE BILLY SUNDAY TRAIL

Chicago, May 20.—The Billy Sunday evangelist campaign, in progress here the past ten weeks, has closed. Trail blazers estimated at 50,000 and the freewill offering to Mr. Sunday at $2,000 to $50,000. The Garden mite box, where Mr. Sunday was converted over thirty years ago, will be given the entire freewill offering as announced by the evangelist before the campaign started. Expenses of the meeting were defrayed by collections taken up to a month ago.

Mr. Sunday's campaign in New York showed a greater number of trail hitters and more money collected than here. Chicago ranks second, with Boston and Philadelphia following.

PROF. ERDMANN SUPPLIED WITH DEADLY BACTERIA

New York, May 20.—Bacteria of the most deadly and virulent diseases were in the possession of Professor Rhoda Erdmann, Ph. D., of the University of Munich, and recently lecturer on biology at Yale, when she was arrested by Federal agents and interned several weeks ago, it has just been revealed. Professor Erdmann had been experimenting with a deadly virus and had inoculated many chickens. They invariably died. She denied indignantly that her experiments had any connection with meningitis epidemics at army cantonments last year.

SHOWERS TOMORROW, THEN MORE FAIR WEATHER

Rain may dampen the end of a perfect day. The local forecast specifies: "Probably local showers tonight or Tuesday morning, followed by fair weather; moderate to fresh southwest to west winds; not much change in temperature."

Conditions were unsettled in the Great Lakes, Ohio Valley, and Ontario regions, but elsewhere the day was fair.

PRISONERS TAKEN BY ALLIES

British Capture Men and Guns in New Raid, War Office Reports

By International News Service.

London, May 20.—"The artillery duelling has become more violent in the region of Hangard (opposite Amiens on the Picardy battle front)," the French War Office reported today.

"Our patrols south of the Avre and west of Castel took some prisoners.

"Northwest of Rheims, near Bermericourt, we penetrated to the enemy's third-line trenches, where we destroyed military works and captured some prisoners, one an officer, as well as war materials.

"The Germans tried to raid our lines in the sectore of Vaucliere and the Bois Chevallere, but without success.

"Elsewhere the night was calm."

SUCCESSFUL BRITISH RAID.

"We captured a few prisoners as the result of a successful raid carried out in the sector of Albert," the British War Office stated today. "The enemy attempted a raid north of Hinges, but was repulsed with heavy loss to the raiding party. Hostile artillery activity increased considerably during the night on the Albert-Bucquoy front."

Albert is about sixteen miles northeast of Amiens. Hinges is on the Flanders front, between two and three miles northwest of Bethune. Bucquoy lies about half way between Albert and Arras.

By a brilliant stroke, Marshal Haig's aggressive Australians have stormed and captured the village of Ville-Sur-Ancre, in the valley of the Ancre river between Merlancourt and Albert.

TAKE 300 PRISONERS.

Three hundred and sixty prisoners, twenty machine guns and a material improvement of the Allied line comprised the reward for the daring enterprise.

Sixty-one German airplanes were accounted for by the British and French, twenty-three by the former and thirty-eight by the latter. Brit-

FIRST AERIAL MAIL HAS REACHED BOSTON

The first letter to reach Boston via aerial post, a message for the president of the Harvard Aeronautical Society, arrived today. It was sent from New York to Washington on the first trip of the mail airplane, as is witnessed by the cancellation mark over the stamp, for under the date, "May 15," appear the words, First Trip." The stamp is of 24-cent denomination and bears in the centre a picture of a modern biplane in full flight. It's message was sent by the Aero Club of America and is an expression of confidence that the aerial mail service will not only prove successful, but will grow to national importance.

MAJOR LUFBERY, AMERICAN ACE, IS KILLED

Wallingford, Ct., Aviator Had Brought Down Eighteen German Planes

the two colored sentries were first attacked and continued firing after receiving wounds, and despite the use of grenades by a superior force. They should be given credit for preventing, by their bravery, the capture of any or our men. Three of our men were wounded, two by grenades. All are recovering, and the wounds in two cases were slight.

LUFBERY KILLED IN COMBAT.

"Major Lufbery was killed in flight during which he had been in combat. He was seen to fall from his machine, which itself fell a short distance from him. He was possibly wounded, or dead before he fell. Earlier in the morning that he was at the time engaged in a long running fight and was flying upside down at 2,000 feet.

"Last night one of our aviators engaged two German planes and brought down one in the vicinity of Apremont.

"This morning Lieutenant Douglas Campbell, flying at 4,500 meters, brought down a Hanoverian Rumpler in the vicinity of Fliry. The hostile plane fell within our lines.

"On May 15 a descendant of one of the French officers who served with the American revolutionary army offered his services, in the name of the descendants of all such officers, a stand of personal and regimental colors to the two regiments of a newly-arrived American division. These flags bore the inscription:

"'From the Sons of the French Champions for the American Union to the American Champions for France and humanity.'"

London Report Says Lufbery Was Fighting a German Three-Seater

A brief cable today from London said Lufbery, the brilliant aviator from Wallingford, Ct., credited with having brought down eighteen Hun airplanes, met death Sunday on the Toul sector, in combat with a German three-seater machine.

The announcement follows grimly a recent statement by General Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, hoped that Lufbery had made his last flight.

Lufbery had actually been dragged from active service with the Lafayette Escadrille by General Pershing and commissioned as an instructor in Pershing's new air army. General Pershing wished Lufbery to turn his matchless skill as an aviator toward training American flyers. Hence the statement that Pershing hoped that Lufbery had gone up for the last time to give battle.

FOUGHT BEST OF HUNS.

For nearly two years Lufbery had baffled the best aviators of the entire Hun aerial corps. He made raid after raid. He brought down enemy after enemy. He was truly inspired by his patriotism, by his hatred of the Germans and by his determination for revenge for the death of his chum, Marc Pourpe, a young French aviator, through whom he first learned flying in time of peace.

Lufbery took ample toll for Pourpe's death, as his record as an "ace" shows. He gained the title from France of "the incomparable pilot" for his deadly efficiency in the most spectacular field of modern warfare.

In a letter to his father at Wallingford Lufbery once described in detail his personal method of waging aerial warfare.

He would start out at early morning before the German airmen came out, ascend about four miles, pick out a cloud that suited him and use that for a screen.

Secluded from his point of vantage, waiting literally like a hawk for its prey, Lufbery would sight a flying Boche. Then, like a bullet, Lufbery would volplane down to within accurate range of his foe.

Once sure of his range, he opened fire and usually hit the mark. He summed up his method thus:

"I love best to wait behind a cloud and watch the Boche bird come on."

Although only thirty-two years old Lufbery held four medals: French War Cross with four palms, British Military Medal, French Military Medal and French Cross of the Legion of Honor.

His aviation exploits crowned a bold career. His full name was Gervais Raoul Lufbery. He was the son of an American father and French mother. He was born and educated in France.

WAS SOLDIER OF FORTUNE.

In young manhood he worked his way through North Africa, the Balkans and the Far East. He came to this country in 1907, and worked two years in a silver plant at Wallingford, Ct.

He enlisted in the United States Army, fought in the Philippines, explored Japan and China, hunted tigers in India and wandered to French Indo-China.

In the Orient he met Marc Pourpe and became an aviator. They arrived in Paris in August, 1914. Pourpe enlisted as a French flyer. Lufbery, awaiting enlistment, but not being a French citizen, had to join the French Foreign Legion to gain his end. When Pourpe was killed, Lufbery transferred, in the Summer of 1916, to the Lafayette Escadrille. Within two months he had brought down three Hun planes and had been decorated.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES.

Two or more air fights a day were common for Lufbery. Often he returned to his flying base with his machine full of holes and even with his own clothing cut by German bullets.

Once he engaged four enemy planes, brought down one and drove off the other three. In the same battle he rescued a comrade in distress.

He was a flying partner of Kiffin Rockwell, the American airman who was killed on September 23 last. When Lufbery learned of Rockwell's death he refilled his petrol tank and soared heavenward again, seeking revenge. But the Boches, knowing Lufbery, had hastily departed.

BRITISH TAKE PRISONERS IN RAIDS

Inflict Losses on the Germans by Operations in Sector of Albert

ish and French raiding machines dropped twenty-nine and forty-four tons of bombs, respectively, upon targets in and behind the German lines, a total of seventy-three tons of bombs.

Nine British machines are missing.

Ville-Sur-Ancre lies just north of the Morlancourt sector, where the Anzacs recently made a series of highly successful and very important gains between the Ancre and the Somme, one of the most vital sectors of the battle line before Amiens.

Field Marshal Haig, announcing the victory in his dispatch, said the Anzac casualties were light.

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT.

This attack is the most important o; a series the Allies have carried out in the last twenty-four hours in conjunction with a terrific bombardment of the German lines from Arras to below the Somme River.

Another raid in the Albert sector and one at Hamel just south of the Somme gave the British prisoners and four machine guns. Ten miles southeast of Amiens the French out into the German positions at Hangard, inflicting losses on the enemy and taking captives.

"The unusual activity of the allies over a front of more than twenty miles from Arras to below Albert was mentioned in the official report from the Berlin War Office. The statement added:

"Our batteries many times were subjected to violent fire."

Over this same front, where the British, Australians and French now have the initiative, the Germans for some time have been expected to deliver an enveloping attack, pivoted on Vimy Ridge, with the idea of trying to link up the Picardy and Flanders salients.

GERMAN LINE IN DANGER.

This has been indicated by the disposition of troops made by General von Buelow. The Allied operations and successes of the last twenty-four hours show that the German general not only has an alert, but an exceedingly aggressive foe to deal with.

The repeated successes of the Anzacs has greatly imperilled the German hold on the little sliver of ground between the Ancre and the Somme, which is essential to the Germans when the grand assaults against Amiens are renewed.

Marshal Haig's operations in this region have accomplished two purposes. By the capture of prisoners in each raid he has kept close tabs on the identification of the enemy forces facing him, and the arrival of each new German division, and at the same time he has generally improved his own line by strategical and tactical gains.

Southwest of Amiens there has been no decrease in the fury of the bombardment between the French and German artilleries.

The successful raid by the French at Hangard is of great importance, as it further endangers the already slender hold the Germans are maintaining in the eastern half of this vital village.

In Flanders the British rushed a German post southwest of Meteren on the northern side of the Lys salient.

Former American Reporter Among U. S. Wounded

Regimental Sergeant-Major George F. Gilbody, reported slightly wounded in the new casualty list, was formerly a Boston AMERICAN reporter. He is one of the best known young men in the Ashmont section of Dorchester.

He is twenty-four years old, the son of Thomas A. Gilbody of No. 2604 Dorchester avenue.

Gilbody was at the Mexican border as secretary to General E. Leroy Sweetser, and is now regimental sergeant-major of the 101st Infantry.

He was one of the active members of St. Mark's Court, M. C. O. F., and had figured in many local political campaigns. He was a candidate for Representative one year.

French and Italian Forces Extend Lines on Macedonian Front

By International News Service.

Paris, May 20.—French and Italian forces in Macedonia made a substantial advance during the later part of last week, reducing a salient and carrying the Allied front to the Protopapa-Cerevoda line. In the centre their advance amounted to 12½ miles, the War Office communique states.

The text of the statement follows:

"West of Koritza, between the high valleys of Davoli and Loaum, Franco-Italian forces, co-operating in a series of operations Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with the object of reducing a salient in this region, also carried the Allied front to the line Protopapa-Cerevoda.

"Despite the difficulties of the terrain, the country in this sector being mountainous and wooded, and even in the face of vigorous enemy resistance, the Franco-Italian forces seized and their objectives. Aviation work contributed to the success. A number of prisoners were taken. Our advance in the centre was twenty kilometers."

Bolsheviki Warns People They Must Recruit and Organize a Red Army

London, May 20.—New indications that the Bolshevik government is determined to put Russia back on a substantial military footing is seen in the following official wireless note issued at Moscow and picked up by the Wireless Press:

"Most of the provincial district and communal councils having ignored the order to recruit and organize a Red army for defence purposes, the central executive committee orders the people's commissariat for war to use all its power to compel compli-

They're Deadly Foes to Gas Waste—the Chalmers Hot Spot and Ram's-Horn Manifold

These are days when the sagacious person is cutting out all forms of waste in his shop and in his home.

No doubt a condition that has sent thousands to see the new Chalmers with its two great devices that Hooverize gas.

One of them is the now noted Hot Spot, which cracks up and heats up the raw gas into a cooked condition for wonderful power results.

The other is the Ram's-Horn Manifold, which of the two is probably an even greater device.

For it takes the gas vapor from the Hot Spot and carries it 14 inches equi-distant to each cylinder without sharp turns, angles or pockets where the vapor might lodge.

So that at the momept of sparking, the gas is (like the charge in a large projectile) ready for 100% results.

There's so little that comes out of the exhaust in the form of unburned gas as to be negligible.

All the power goes into the crank-shaft and out of the rear wheels.

"BACK UP HEROISM OF OUR BOYS WITH RED CROSS MONEY," PLEADS GOV. McCALL

To the Editor of the Boston AMERICAN—The American Red Cross turns to us again for the means to continue its noble work. Our response should be prompt and generous. We cannot all serve upon the battle line, but we can serve those who do, and in no worthier way than in contributing to the Red Cross. We of this Commonwealth have inherited splendid traditions and our duty is to maintain the strength of that inheritance. We have always done so, and I know we shall continue to do so.

Our boys in France have heroically distinguished themselves. We must not allow the lustre of their heroism to be sullied by failure on our part to perform our duty in the same spirit of patriotism. Our hearts and thoughts are all with the men in the service. Let us also, insofar as our means will allow, provide with our money those things that will make their life easier.

$60,000 IN GIFTS FOR RED CROSS

week will be turned over to the fund.

Lieutenant-Colonel Cecil G. Williams, chief recruiting officer of the Dominion of Canada, will be the principal speaker at the Red Cross rally tomorrow noon in front of Faneuil Hall. No collection will be taken. The Naval Aviation Band will furnish music. Miss Grace Hamlin will sing.

Christopher J. Halligan, Jr., member of Headquarters Troops at Camp Devens, has been assigned to speak at out-of-town rallies for the fund.

George H. Crosbie has been assigned to look after the Red Cross Cottage on the Common. He will be assisted by an able corps of men and women, who will answer all questions.

The drive started in Boston with two gifts, totalling $60,000, one of $10,000 by Eliot Wadsworth and the other, $50,000, from the Gillette Safety Razor Company.

Peabody earned the distinction today of being the first city to go over the top in the second great Red Cross War Fund drive. At exactly 9 a. m. its quota of $20,000 had been raised, and when the official notice was flashed to the Milk street office of the Red Cross the sum had reached $22,207.

The first town to go over the top was Sherborn. Its quota was $2,400, and $3,000 was raised at 10 a. m.

The all over the country is to raise $100,000,000. Of this, seven millions of dollars are expected to come from New England, three millions from Boston alone. It is confidently expected that the Boston contribution at the end of the week will have touched $4,000,000.

In spreading broadcast the needs of the Red Cross and the purposes to which the money in its work is put, words of mercy among the soldiers and sailors of this country now fighting in the world war, no cause ever was given a better start. Pastors of churches throughout New England have brought the work before their congregations, and laymen in all walks of life, down to the small societies, have espoused the cause.

In addition to this there will be rallies and other meetings every day and evening throughout New England, winding up next Monday night, when the campaign will be closed.

NEED MORE PRESSING.

With Mr. Wadsworth's gift was the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Webster:

"I beg to inclose herewith my subscription for $10,000 to the second Red Cross War Fund. I was fortunate enough last year to be able to subscribe this amount and feel it my duty to subscribe the same amount to the new fund. I am convinced that in this crisis every contributor to the first War Fund should give at least as much as last year. Surely the need today is clearer and more compelling than in June, 1917.

"Four months' observation of the work which has been accomplished by the Red Cross commissions in Europe—First, for our own men; second, for the peoples of the Allies, and third, as a tangible evidence that America is in this war, has been absolutely convincing to me of the value of the Red Cross efforts.

"We have been in the war now for more than thirteen months. As measured by the peoples of Europe, who have been given everything they possess in man power and resources, the war we have had has been military way has necessarily been slight. We are, I am confident, coming to from now on, but the Red Cross work must be kept at its highest pitch.

WORK RAPIDLY INCREASING.

"As the number of American troops in Europe grows the demands on their account on the Red Cross will be greatly increased. The work with the armies and civilians of the allied nations cannot and must not be abated in the slightest way at this critical time.

"I have, as you know, always rated very highly the value of the work of the Red Cross in war, not only from the humanitarian aspect, but from the courage which it brings to combatants and non-combatants alike. After personally seeing the effect of Red Cross work carried out in Europe during the past year, I cannot express too strongly my feeling as to its importance. Our organization today is without question a very definite factor in the great unified Allied army which stands between the Huns and civilization.

"Wishing you every success in this campaign, believe me,

"Sincerely yours,

"ELIOT WADSWORTH."

CANADIAN CHIEF APPEALS FOR RED CROSS

Lieutenant-Colonel Cecil G. Williams, chief recruiting officer in Canada, was the leading speaker at the noon rally of Red Cross Team No. 8 on the green in front of the Boston Chamber of Commerce today.

The team is composed of members of the Grain Board of the Chamber, George W. Eddy is chairman. A Lebarron Russell presided at the rally. Madam Grace Hanlon sang, and the band from the Receiving Ship at Commonwealth Pier played.

Colonel Williams dilated on the heroism of the army and navy, and made the statement that 12,000,000 soldiers had been committed to the care of the allied navy since the beginning of the war, 500 of them four or five times, and only 2,700 men have been lost.

The speaker told of being in London during an air raid, and then made an eloquent and moving appeal for the Red Cross. He said in part:

"Of all the war activities I know of, there are none so worthy of your support as the Red Cross. It comes to a man in his extreme hour, when his splendid vitality is at the lowest ebb, and he is folded in the gracious arms of the Red Cross.

"I expect Boston and all America will support the second Red Cross fund so enthusiastically that your leaders will be able to send to gallant Pershing the heartening message: 'The second Red Cross fund enthusiastically oversubscribed and we will carry on, yea, even until the day breaks and the shadows flee away.'"

EX-CHIEF OF WALPOLE EAGER FOR ACTIVE SERVICE

Animated by a desire for non-combatant service, which would release some younger man for service at the front, Howard Patton, former chief of the Walpole Police Department, today tried to enlist at the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission. Mr. Patton is fifty-eight years old. Effort will be made by Captain J. L. Breakey of the Royal Engineers to get him into the Inland Waterways and Docks section. The former police chief has had seventeen years service in the British army.

Malden Boy, in Prison Camp, Praises the Red Cross

Here's a Red Cross testimonial from a man who is in a position to know—a Greater Boston man in a German prison camp. He is Chief Gunner James Delaney, U. S. N., of No. 12 Cleveland street, Malden. He and four others of the naval gun crew of the steamship Campana were taken prisoners when the Campana was sunk by a U-boat.

From his prison camp near Brandenburg, Germany, Delaney has recently written to his wife, Mrs. Elinor Delaney, saying in part:

"The Red Cross at Berne sends us a very nice food parcel twice a week. I tell you, Nona, pen can never write, or words explain, the amount of good the Red Cross has done and are doing, and yet people do not seem to realize this in fact. I was one who did not until now. Once home I will be different to the greatest activity of the world, American Red Cross."

In the various camps near Brandenburg are thirty-one American prisoners, 500 French, nineteen Belgians, 6,076 Russians and 525 Italians.

WINTHROP MAN HELD IN $2,000 FOR AUTO FATALITY

Charles E. Rowe, Jr., of Loring road, Winthrop, was held in $2,000, pending a hearing on a warrant for manslaughter, as a result of the death of John Hirupsore of No. 297 Border street, East Boston, who is said to have been fatally injured by Rowe's automobile. The boy was four years old.

FOUR MILLION A DAY FOR NEW YORK

By International News Service.

New York, May 20.—A person in the city will be afforded the privilege during the coming week to contribute to the $25,000,000 which is New York's quota of the $100,000,000 to be raised for the American Red Cross. The drive starts officially at noon today. But thousands of workers who go early to their places of business were met by enthusiastic canvassers with solicitations for contributions.

Each day until Saturday, $4,250,000 must be realized to complete the city's quota. Fifty a dollar a day is asked from each inhabitant who has passed the age of early childhood. And the Red Cross wants each gift, large and small, to be a free will offering towards its work to relieve the sufferings caused by war.

The money will be collected in many ways. There will be public meetings. Appeals will be made from theatre stages. Hundreds of women's committees have formulated plans for gatherings, sales, socialities, etc., to raise money. But the means upon which, perhaps, most dependence is being placed by the national committee and the city committee, is the plan for the house to house and office canvassing, by which every man and woman in the city will be reached and urged to contribute to the limit of their means.

LYNN PLANS FOR BIG PARADE FOR WAR CHEST

Lynn began today its War Chest fund drive, which will continue until May 27, and will be featured by a great civic parade Wednesday evening, with more than 10,000 in line. The first hour's subscriptions were $22,636. The first gift to the fund was $26, from thirteen little girls, all under 12 years of age, who will give $26 a year as long as the war lasts. The war chest fund will take the place locally of a Red Cross drive, the Red Cross being allotted a part of the proceeds of the campaign. The fund will also provide for the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus and other legitimate organizations.

SOCIETY WOMEN BEG FUNDS FOR RED CROSS

Start Early and Put in a Strenuous Day for "Soldiers' Mother"

"Won't you give something to the Red Cross? Surely you want to give, to help our boys 'over there.' Give something; give much if you can; give a little anyway."

In the name of the Red Cross, the "mother of the soldier," society maids and matrons of Boston's Back Bay today besieged every home, every passing motor and every plodding pedestrian in the interests of the Red Cross.

The women who constituted the Back Bay corps started their drive for the Red Cross early in the day, making their trip largely in limousine cars, armed with literature and argument, and with a determination to make the contribution from this part of the city the record-breaker of them all.

DIRECTS BACK BAY WORK.

Miss Dorothy Forbes, society woman, sportswoman and ardent worker in the Red Cross, is chairman of the Back Bay section. From special headquarters at No. 562 Boylston street she is directly the work. Here she is not only in constant touch each moment with members of her own committee, but here also captains of the teams of the district report to her as well.

Acting as vice-chairman of Miss Forbes' committee is Mrs. William S. Patten. Mrs. Archibald Blanchard is secretary of the committee. Other members include women who have been prominent in all the patriotic enterprises since the beginning of the war. They are Mrs. George N. Fearing, Jr., Mrs. Henry Lyman, Mrs. Malin McDonald, Miss Ruth Thayer, Miss Pauline Fenner and Miss Sarah Lawrence.

Women who acted as captains of the teams were Mrs. T. L. Hisgitson, Jr., Mrs. William H. Dewart, Mrs. Alfred Codman, Mrs. William T. Aldred, Mrs. John Heard, Jr., Mrs. Philip Stockton, Miss Grace Brooks, Miss Elizabeth Porter and Miss Ethel Fogler.

HAVE MANY ACTIVITIES.

Mrs. Higginson, who is an acting captain, is New England chairman of the women's committee on the Liberty Loan. Mrs. Fearing was in charge of organizing the women's section of the big Liberty Loan parade. She is also one of the influential supporters and workers as well in the Soldiers' Coffee House. Mrs. Ayer, one of the patriotic enterprises are there that do not rely upon her for active support.

The women of the committee are those who have devoted almost all of their time to Red Cross enterprises throughout the past season, and the undertaking of the drive in this section of the city is only one of their many activities in this line.

Most of them have the inspiration of a son, a brother or a husband in the service to them the work of the service and to them the work of the "Mother of the Soldier" is most dear. Few were those today who escaped their smiling persistency, or their determination that all should have a part in the big drive.

CAMBRIDGE LINES UP WORKERS FOR DRIVE

Cambridge is ready for the second Red Cross drive. Headquarters have been established in the College House, Harvard square. Captains of the 100 teams right at the Colonial Club, when team reports will be handed in, and the big drive will make a house to house canvass. In addition, all the factories will be canvassed, all the theatres and noon rallies will be held.

Every organization of the work among the factory employes will be under the direction of J. William Fallon of the Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Company; manufacturers and employers. Mark R. Jouett, department store. James E. Carmody. The speakers' bureau will be under the direction of Lowe; publicity in charge of George L. Dow; publicity in charge of Norris E. Bennett and Miss Pauline Jones.

The Inman Square branch of the Red Cross will hold a dancing party tonight at Waltz Hall. The proceeds will be devoted to the purchase of wool and other supplies. The committee in charge is composed of Mrs. J. P. Hall, chairman; Mrs. Mary Mitchner, Mrs. J. Nichols and Miss Louise McCarthy.

ARLINGTON HAS NEW PLAN FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

A novel procedure to secure the Red Cross subscription will be used in Arlington during the Red Cross drive, which begins today. The town will be divided into districts, and having a team for each section, the forty men will go to make the house-to-house canvass. They will go to a different section of the town each evening and "clean up" that particular locality. Their arrival will be announced by whistles, gongs and the sounding of several pieces of apparatus of the Arlington fire department. The drive starts this evening.

TWO MEN DIE IN LODGING HOUSE FIRE

Manchester, N. H., May 20.—Daniel Sheehan, sixty, and Tony Capolis, a young Greek, were burned to death in a lodging house fire at No. 101 Central street. The twenty other occupants of the buildings escaped with difficulty and many were taken from the building by firemen.

Former President Taft's Victory Message

By Ex-President Taft.

I hope that every Red Cross member will repeat this confident message. It is designed to show everyone that this fund for humanitarian relief is really a business-like method of helping to win the war. The words themselves may not reach the troops in the line or the war-harrassed civilians, but the tangible results of this appeal must convince them that America backs her own men and is a real ally. This will help to maintain their winning spirit.

American Red Cross activities include a wide range of human salvage efforts. First—for the relief of our boys and the fighters of the Allies—the maintenance of great hospitals and unfailing stores of surgical supplies, skilled nurses, provision of ambulances, establishment of rest and convalescent homes and furnishing of sweaters and comforts. They include operation of canteens for supplying food, bathing and sleeping facilities to troops in transit—way stations, as it were, of the Red Cross' mothering influence which surrounds every American boy from the time he leaves home until he returns, or soothe his pain and record his last brave message. To the wounded, it endeavors to supply the closest substitute for the ministrations of real mothers, wives and sisters.

Wars may be lost behind the front as well as in the trenches; the American Red Cross therefore regards it as an essential victory activity that no American soldier shall have need to worry about the condition of his family. Worried about those left behind, his morale is sure to suffer; assured through Red Cross channels that his dependents will be safeguarded, that his children will have every chance, the American soldier will be irresistible in battle.

The American Red Cross also is carrying on a vast work back of the lines in France and Italy and other sections designed to maintain the health and spirit of the civilian workers and restore the stricken to civic usefulness. It is caring for thousands of refugees, helping in a great fight against tuberculosis, aiding to save the newborn babies of our heroic allies, finding homes and work for those made homeless, and in particular, seeing that no child of a brave father lacks food, clothing, playthings, comfort, or education. No armed man fighting for ... world fit to live in can be allowed to weaken in body or pluck for lack of aught that American money can buy or American service or intelligence can provide.

GERMAN RAIDS REPULSED BY YANKEES

By International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—General Pershing, in a communique, tells of the victorious repulse by the Americans of several German raids.

"The communique follows:

"In Picardy and Lorraine hostile raids were repulsed with loss to the enemy in killed and wounded. In the Woevre there was continued aerial activity, our planes successfully engaged in several encounters.

"Early this morning in the Lorraine section a strong enemy patrol of seventy-five men attempted a raid on one of our advanced positions. The raid was a complete failure and the enemy in retreating left a number dead in our trench.

"Last evening north of Toul, Lieutenant Rickenbacker, flying at 5,000 meters, was attacked by a German type plane when a second machine came between them. Lieutenant Rickenbacker drove down one of the second machine, taking it off, and apparently bringing the hostile plane down out of control. Although his own machine was badly damaged he succeeded in returning safely to his own lines."

About the same time Captain Peterson attacked a two-seated machine, signalled to him in the vicinity of St. Mihiel, the enemy machine descended, apparently failing in a nose dive.

"Lieutenant Chambers, at about the same time, engaged two hostile machines, of which one was sent to fall. The other was pursued without result.

"The German wireless press of May 17 announces that in view of uncertainties concerning supplies from Ukraine, the bread rations will be reduced from 200 to 160 grammes from June 16."

U. S. BOYS SHED ARMY COATS TO BATTLE HUNS

By NEWTON C. PARKE,
Staff Correspondent of International News Service.

With the American Army In France, May 20.—Summer has set in in France and your Uncle Sam now has a mid-ocean army. From the lines of communication straight down to the trenches the doughboys are now shedding their heavy tunics wherever possible, and labor detachments are revealed by the woods are shedding even more.

Trench land, no No Man's Land are both rapidly losing dandelion buttercups and daisies, and in many places on the Toul and Luneville fronts apple trees are in full blossom between the opposing lines.

The rains have opened the bathing season, plunging into nearby creeks and rivers is their relief from flights over the Boche lines.

The hot sun is bringing about reunions of troops from all nations in the village streets, Americans swapping their old broad-brimmed campaign hats with the French Mongolian laboring troops for oriental souvenirs. The latter now present a motley novelty in this war, with their blue labor smock, Yankee hats and umbrellas.

In one village a Yankee doughboy spent Saturday afternoon teaching the Poilus to sing

"When our Uncle Sammy he gets the infantry

Gets the artillery

Gets the cavalry,

Then, oy God, we'll all go to Germany."

"Poor old Kaiser Bill!"

Everything the Poilus were doing a French version.

"Quang notre Oncle Sammy aura de l'infanterie

Aura du l'artillerie

Aura de la cavalerie

Alors, par Dieu nous irons tous en allemagne."

"A bientot vieux Kaiser Bill!"

In the rue de Washington, in another quaint old town, a tall Texan waved away a white-haired plump little French woman in a sun bonnet and the grey-eyed red-faced beating a mattress in the village street, and took the mattress and beating the mattress himself, while his comrades chanted:

"Lafoning his bit for France, by God,

He's doing his bit for France!"

Squatted in the shade of a huge mangue pile, another group of boys in khaki were trying to learn Hindustani from several white turbaned Essexy darkies, who were laughing and slapping the Americans on the back with all the familiarity of wise agents.

In field headquarters in the town a sergeant was found on his knees in the dust shooting marbles with a bunch of French kids just out of school.

FIVE NEGROES IN GEORGIA PUT TO DEATH BY MOB

Woman's Body Riddled With Bullets by Lynchers to Avenge Slaying

By International News Service.

Valdosa, Ga., May 20.—Five negroes have been lynched for the murder of Hampton Smith thus far, and several others are today behind the bars strongly guarded against further violence.

Mary Turner, wife of Hayes Turner, who was hanged Saturday night in Brooks County, was hanged to Folsom's bridge over Little River late yesterday. It is claimed she made unwise remarks about the execution of her husband, that a gold watch belonging to the murdered man was found in her possession, and that the murder plot was hatched at her house. Her body was riddled with bullets.

Posses are today in pursuit of Sydney Johnson, who, it is charged, actually committed the murder of Smith, out of which the lynchings grew. All of Johnson's relatives, including his father and mother, are in jail strongly guarded. The feeling among the whites is still intense today and other negroes said to have been connected with the crime are being sought.

The murder occurred Thursday night when two negroes stole Hampton Smith's shotgun, killing Smith and wounding his wife.

CAPT. PETERSON IS NOW ACE AMONG AMERICANS

By NEWTON C. PARKE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, May 18 (delayed).—Captain David Peterson, American aviator and graduate of Lehigh University, has joined the ranks of the "aces" by shooting down his fifth enemy plane behind the German lines east of St. Mihiel, just before dusk on Friday.

Peterson achieved his first air victory last September. Since joining the Americans he has brought down four other Germans.

PHOTOGRAPHS SHOW U-BOATS ARE BLOCKED

London, May 20.—Photographs taken of the harbor of the blocked German submarine base at Zeebrugge and the Bruges Canal show that they are unchanged from April 23 (when British raiders sank a steel cable up the harbor), said an Admiralty statement today. The report added that the great part of the enemy's submarine and torpedo craft that had used the Flanders coast for a base have been immobile at Bruges since Zeebrugge was blocked.

HUDSON SELECTMEN WIN OVER RAILROAD

The selectmen of Hudson scored a $853 victory—to say nothing of the moral weight of the case—over the Boston & Maine Railroad today. The Public Service Commission ordered the road to reimburse the town to that extent for overcharge on a coal bill for last Winter's school fuel. The road forwarded to Hudson a car which was only partly filled, the selectmen made a note of it. When the road filed its bill on full-load rates the selectmen took exception that one car was shy.

6,000 IN PITTSFIELD WAR CHEST PARADE

Pittsfield, May 20.—A parade with 6,000 in line, together with exercises at the City Park, featured the inauguration of the Pittsfield War Chest Campaign. The originator of the plan hope to raise $765,000 in a week. The speakers at the City Park exercises were Rev. W. J. Perry of New London, Wisconsin, and former Senator Thomas P. Cassidy. Mr. Perry is the father of Ensign Lloyd A. Perry, who met death in France, and is a descendant of Commodore Perry.

BURLESON HURLS NEW BROADSIDE AT ROOSEVELT

Accuses Colonel of Approving Magazine Article Used by Germans in Propaganda.

By International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—Postmaster-General Burleson has fired a broadside at Colonel Roosevelt and practically accused him of approving a magazine article which is now being used by German propagandists in various parts of the world.

Following Colonel Roosevelt's charges that Mr. Burleson was using the espionage act for political purposes by punishing certain papers, the Postmaster-General declares that an article in the Metropolitan Magazine entitled "Is America Honest?" is being translated into German, Spanish, Portuguese and the Scandinavian language and is being spread broadcast throughout Mexico, South America and other countries.

Mr. Burleson says he has failed to learn of a single patriotic reader, "unless it be Mr. Roosevelt," who approved the publication of the article.

The postmaster-general gives little heed to Colonel Roosevelt's cries against the Hearst newspapers. He says no matter, published either by Mr. Hearst or by Colonel Roosevelt "has come to my attention, which in my opinion, warranted action by the post office department under the espionage act against either of them."

HAS WAITED PATIENTLY.

He says the post office department has received many complaints that Colonel Roosevelt's articles were in violation of the espionage act than it has against the Hearst newspapers. The postmaster-general declares the charges that he was persecuting Colliers, the Metropolitan Magazine or the Tribune were not true as the department has taken no action against any of them.

He gave out this statement:

"I have waited patiently for Mr. Roosevelt to substantiate his statement made in the morning papers of May 8 to the effect that the Postoffice Department was using the espionage act for political purposes by 'punishing papers which upheld the war' but which told the truth about the administration's failure to conduct the war efficiently,' and by failing to 'proceed against powerful newspapers which opposed the war or attacked our allies or directly or indirectly aided Germany against this country,' and those papers upheld the administration and defended inefficiency."

STORM OF PROTEST.

"Mr. Roosevelt's reply of May 11, which he then termed 'preliminary' in the main, evades the issue presented and is thoroughly misleading. He names the New York Tribune, Colliers and the Metropolitan Magazine, in a way which has created the impression that these publications have been the objects of improper discrimination by the Postoffice Department.

"This department has taken no action against Colliers.

"This department has taken no action against the Tribune.

"In exposing German propaganda early in the war the department brought to public attention typical seditious matter which was being circulated throughout the country. It made available to newspaper men its files disclosing such disloyal matter. The Tribune promptly availed itself of this opportunity and gave helpful assistance, for which patriotic service I personally thanked one of its staff correspondents.

"The department has taken no action against the Metropolitan Magazine.

"With respect to this magazine, the incident referred to by Mr. Roosevelt occurred after the magazine had passed through the mails and not a copy offered for mailing failed of transmission. The facts with respect to this matter were made public in a statement by the solicitor, which appeared in the morning papers of March 19.

"Mr. Roosevelt's contention that the Metropolitan Magazine was inflamed from that incident is unfortunate. It cannot be said that the magazine lost sales on that account at that time. On the contrary, more copies of the March issue were sold on account of the publicity given the matter. The injury, therefore, must have followed as the result of public disapproval of the matter contained in that issue.

"I have yet to learn of a patriotic reader unless it be Mr. Roosevelt, who approved the publication in that issue of the article, 'Is America Honest?' by William Hard. This department received a large number of letters from widely separated sections of the country characterizing the publication of the Hard article as bad from every standpoint. Some claimed it was unpatriotic, others that it violated the espionage act, and still others that it was treasonable.

"If Mr. Roosevelt means that I should repair the injury (?) to the magazine by joining him in commending the 'Hard' article as desirable literature for forwarding the war aims of the government, I cannot accommodate him.

"I am reliably informed that Germany highly appreciates the 'Hard article—so highly,' in fact, that her propaganda has been translated into German, Spanish, Portuguese and the Scandinavian languages and are now flooding Mexico, South America and other countries with copies of it. Mr. Roosevelt could hardly add to the injurious effect of this article should he now have it reproduced in the Congressional Record in full with its disgusting illustrations, accompanied by his express approval, thus giving it free and unlimited distribution.

"So much for Mr. Roosevelt's first charge. Now what of his second?

"The press of every complexion should always have the widest latitude for criticism of the acts of all public officials. This principle is constantly kept in mind in the administration of the espionage act and disposing of complaints made thereunder.

"The Postoffice Department has received more complaints from the public alleging that Mr. Roosevelt's articles were in violation of the espionage act than it has against the Hearst newspapers.

"No matter published by either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Hearst has come to my attention which, in my opinion, warranted action by the Postoffice Department under the espionage act against either of them.

"All but two of the articles in the Hearst papers referred to by Mr. Roosevelt were published before the passage of the espionage act (June 15, 1917), and some of them before our entry into the war. The Postoffice Department can hardly be expected even by Mr. Roosevelt to take action against a paper for the publication of matter which was printed and circulated before the passage of the law.

"The two articles specifically mentioned appeared in the New York American of July 27 and November 22, 1917. Mr. Roosevelt is not a lawyer, and however any one may disagree with these two articles, it is confidently asserted that if Mr. Roosevelt had advised with a lawyer of even second rate about it, he would have been told that nothing could be found in these articles in violation of the espionage act.

HAD NO CARE IN COURT.

"Mr. Hearst, through his vast newspaper circulation and writings along lines familiar to the public, and Mr. Roosevelt, with the prestige of an ex-President of the United States, writing along entirely different but equally well known lines, have each said things, whatever the motive, that a casual reader would believe were in conflict with the espionage act. But those whose responsibility it is to enforce the law do not believe a case could be made to stand against either of them in the courts.

"The law must be administered as it is found. Any layman can read the facts as stated in the opinion of the court, in the department's case against Watson's paper, 'The Jeffersonian' (Congressional Record of August 22, 1917), and see that it was very different from Mr. Roosevelt's case against Mr. Hearst. If Mr. Roosevelt means to intimate that I was instrumental, directly or indirectly, in obtaining for Mr. Hearst, or any company or association with which he is connected, a restoration of news or cable facilities which had been withdrawn from him by the Allied governments, he is in error. I will say further I know of no one who performed such a service for him.

"As to the telegram to Mr. Arthur Brisbane, I quote from Mr. Roosevelt:

"'Mr. Burleson says of Mr. Hearst's utter ego that he congratulated the people of Chicago because they are to have the benefit of Mr. Brisbane's able and unselfish efforts for justice and freedom and true democratic government.'

CHICAGO WAS FORTUNATE.

"The telegram sent was as follows:

"'From press reports I note that you are to be the editor of the new Herald and Examiner and I congratulate the people of Chicago that they are to have the benefit of your able and unselfish efforts in furtherance of the progress of the city and the development of the new paper, and I indulge the hope that it will always stand for justice, freedom and the principles of true democratic government.'

"However this telegram may have been handled or whatever its egect, the purpose in sending it was far from that charged by Mr. Roosevelt.

"In conclusion:

"To those who have the will to launch assaults against public officials who are conscientiously discharging their duty, I commend a careful reading of the eighth stanza in Tennyson's 'The Grandmother.'"

BOY OF 17 DOES COOKING FOR 20 LADS IN CAMP

Herbert F. W. Lightfoot, seventeen years old, a Dorchester High School pupil, residing at No. 25 Ashmont street, Dorchester, has been commissioned "chief chef" in the United States Boys' Working Reserves, and does the cooking for twenty-five lads at a camp in Hudson. He enrolled at the State House early in the Fall, and then took a course in cooking at the North Bennet Street School.

CANNOT TAKE BAR EXAMS BECAUSE SHE IS NOT 21

Because she is not yet twenty-one, Miss Miriam Goldberg, a candidate for graduation from the Boston University School of Law, will be prevented from taking the Massachusetts bar examination this year.

Miss Goldberg blushingly admits that it is her age that prevents her from taking the examinations this June. She said, however, that should she eventually pass the State examination, she desires to practice. She believes the future offers many splendid opportunities for the woman lawyer. Five other young women received their degree of LL. B. this morning.

BOSTON ZIONISTS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Many greater Boston Zionist workers and leaders, representing local Zionist organizations, will attend the convention of the Zionist Organization of America, which will be held at Pittsburgh, Pa., for the week beginning June 23 and ending on the evening of Thursday, June 27. It is expected that this will be the most important gathering of the kind ever held in the history of the Zionist movement. Hundreds of committees are actively engaged in completing the details.

Here's a Gentle Laxative For Elderly People

A daily free movement of the bowels becomes a serious problem as you step from middle-life into old age, and much dependence can no longer be placed on nature herself. The bowels find artificial aid necessary.

The stronger the physic, as old people soon learn, the greater the contraction of the bowels thereafter, and so the wise purposely avoid salt waters, pills and other harsh purgatives. Many have learned to place absolute reliance on the gentle but positive action of a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

It produces an agreeable movement as nearly natural and free as high pharmaceutical skill can make it. Thousands use it regularly, in the small dose prescribed, and keep themselves in fine health and good cheer, and entirely free from constipation.

The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

NO INCREASE

In spite of enormously increased laboratory cost due to the War, the manufacturers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sacrificing their profits and absorbing the war taxes, so that this family laxative may remain at the pre-war price of 50c and $1 a large bottle. So said by druggists for 35 years.

CARELESS DRIVER IS ASSESSED $5

Reuben Porter, twenty, of Preston street, Dorchester, was fined $5 in Dorchester today for violating the traffic regulations. Patrolman William L. Norton told the court that Porter allowed his horse's reins to dangle over the dashboard of a carriage in which he was riding instead of holding them in his hands while the horse was snaking down Hose Hill avenue, Dorchester. A complaint charging Porter with working on the Lord's Day was filed.

11 BILLION WAR BILL OF HOUSE READY

Members Will Respect Need for Secrecy and Pass Items Without Question

By International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—After months of passing war measures of varying importance, the House made ready to put through a real war measure today. It was the $11,000,000,000 army appropriation bill, providing for an army of 5,000,000 men and a fleet of seventy-five aero squadrons to be put into action during the next twelve months.

Partisanship was set aside for the time being, and the decks were cleared for quick action as soon as the bill is presented by the House Military Affairs Committee.

The estimates of expenditures submitted by Secretary Baker and his associates totalled $11,771,666,817. These are expected to be incorporated in the bill, with but slight changes, and the measure is expected to pass the House in record time, with practically no changes.

On many of the items the House will be asked to vote blindly and with a minimum of debate. The fact that secrecy must surround the use to which many of the appropriations are to be put was recognized by the House membership.

The committee has spent nearly six months working on the bill. It knows for what purpose every dollar is to be expended. That being the case, the House was prepared to vote for lump sum appropriations in faith.

The knowledge gained by Secretary Baker in his trip led to the adding of nearly $4,000,000,000 to the bill. The original estimates, submitted by the Secretary before his tour of the war zone, totaled $7,732,812,561.

The new items added were $15,762,000 for maintenance of the provost marshal general's office; $143,663,637 $360,000,000 authorizations for ordnance supplies. Many of the appropriations were greatly increased, notably that for tanks, which was jumped nearly 500 per cent.

BREAD RATION IN GERMANY REDUCED

Washington, May 20.—Owing to "uncertainty in the time of arrival of grain from Ukrainia," bread rations in Germany have been reduced from 200 grammes a day to 160, according to a Wolff Agency dispatch received at the State Department today. The dispatch adds that the reduction will not be felt, as sugar and vegetable rations are to be increased.

TELLS OF TRIPS HE TOOK WITH GRACE LUSK

Dr. Roberts Admits Crossing State Lines With Woman Who Slew His Wife

Waukesha, Wis., May 20.—Federal agents, armed closely today when Dr. David Roberts, husband of Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts, slain by Miss Grace Lusk and for those death she is now on trial for murder, told of cross-country trips with Miss Lusk and of registering as man and wife at a Chicago hotel.

Dr. Roberts resumed the stand when court opened and underwent another cross-examination at the hands of Attorney Jay Lockney, for the defense.

Detailed questioning regarding who paid for the tickets on the trips to Milwaukee and back in 1917, irritated Dr. Roberts. At times Dr. Roberts "didn't know" or "couldn't remember" about the paying of railroad fares. Several times, however, he insisted that she paid her own fare. Later he admitted giving her money.

"Did you give her money for the purpose of making good the amount she had paid for railroad fare?" asked Lockney.

GAVE HER MONEY.

"Well, I gave it to her. There were never any instructions. Perhaps she did pay her fare with it," replied Roberts.

"Didn't you tell her it was for her fare?" prodded Lockney.

"No!" shouted Roberts.

It was on January 19, 1917, that Roberts and Miss Lusk first registered as man and wife, he testified. It was at the Morrison Hotel in Chicago. He said they remained until the next day.

Then he also told of a meeting in the Sherman Hotel in Chicago. On arriving he found that Miss Lusk had registered just ahead of him. When he asked her when she arrived and how it came that her name was dated a day later than she arrived, a quarrel followed. This was in Miss Lusk's room. Here again Roberts' memory failed him, for he could not remember that they talked of anything except "weather conditions and things like that." He said she paid her bills and he paid his.

RECALLS FIRST KISS.

The now famous volume, "Cattle Breeds and Their Origin," which Dr. Roberts blamed for his first meeting and first kiss, again bobbed up today. Roberts had testified previously that he enlisted Miss Lusk's aid only to assist him on his book.

Lockney then asked: "If your visit in Peoria was after or before the book was completed?"

Dr. Roberts "couldn't recall exactly."

He even brought from his vest pocket a little memorandum book, in which in the same hand that he had jotted down prescriptions for ailing cattle he preserved a record of their meetings in hotels in Chicago and other cities. It was a cold-blooded accounting.

Grace Lusk's attorney watched her almost as closely as they watched the witness. They realized that his behavior today might sway her decision either to protect him or denounce him when she is called upon to take the witness stand.

WOMAN SMILES BROADLY.

They must have felt gratified at the amused smile that played across her face when the veterinary sought to hold her up as an impassioned huntress of himself. They must have taken some encouragement for the relax manner in which she lolled back in her chair, even in the disclosure of intimacies that would cause a blush in a smoking compartment of a club car. At the worst of it she smiled broadly and caressed a red carnation that rested its spicy head against her bosom.

Grace Lusk Still Shows Her Love for Man Who Has Called Her His Temptress

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Waukesha, Wis., May 20.—The same psychological tenets which prompted Miss Grace Lusk to shoot to death the wife of Dr. David A. Roberts in order to clear her pathway of love to him remain unanswered.

Though the former State veterinarian on the witness stand last week in the trial of the girl further repudiated her love and declared "she was my temptress; she forced me to do her will," Miss Lusk still holds him next to her heart and, despite all persuasive efforts has so far been unable to make herself turn against him.

This fact, which developed today, exploded a bomb in the defence's plans. Relatives and friends of the young woman were thrown into panic by her attitude.

MISS LUSK TO TESTIFY.

For Miss Lusk will take the stand this week. And unless she consents to tell of him then as the villian her counsel is seeking to picture him before the jury, her cause is believed lost.

Yet when all her advisers sought to dissuade her from her determination to shield the doctor, she cried in exasperation:

"You don't understand; you cannot understand; you don't know."

Even when shown Roberts' statement, "Miss Lusk never loved me," she only closed her eyes wearily, smiled sadly and gazed through the barred window of her little cell at the bright sky.

The prosecution, it is expected, will attempt, with the testimony of a Federal agent, to placate any evidence which the woman may give to incriminate Dr. Roberts.

The dapper little horse doctor occupied the witness chair during the entire morning session, and Mr. Lockney for the defence cross-examined him in regard to trips taken with Miss Lusk to Chicago and other places.

These trips appear to have been long-distance illustrations of the maxim, "The way of the transgressor is hard." There was continual quarrelling, reconciliations that culminated in lunches at the "Boston Oyster House"—when they happened to be in Chicago, and visits to the theatres and "movies." Among other shows they visited "Pals and Warmer," which at that time seemed a fair diagnosis of the situation.

"Who paid for these trips?" Mr. Lockney inquired. And the thirty Lothario answered: "I paid my bills and Miss Lusk paid hers."

DOWD'S COUNSEL TELLS POLICE CHARGES

Hearing for Suspended Revere Patrolman Friday at City Hall

Patrolman Thomas W. Dowd of the Revere Police Department, who was suspended three weeks ago by Mayor Alfred S. Hall for conduct unbecoming an officer and detrimental to the discipline of the force, will be given a hearing in Revere City Hall Friday.

Judge Samuel R. Cutler, retained as counsel by Patrolman Dowd, today made public the charges which have been preferred against the latter, as follows:

That Patrolman Thomas W. Dowd on March 12 and April 3 failed to report for duty after being a witness in the Superior Court; that on April 8 he failed to investigate a certain pool-room in Revere after he was ordered to do so by the chief at roll-call; that on April 9, 11, and 13 he failed to pull in a duty call at 8 a. m.; that on April 13 he insulted a superior officer in the presence of a patrolman and the chief; that on April 20 he used insubordinate language to the chief and captain.

Since Dowd's suspension his salary has been made up by the other officers of the police department.

STEELS WEAK IN IRREGULAR MARKET

Favorable Trade News and Record Production Fail to Stop Trend of Lower Prices

The market became unsteady during the morning, and during the noon hour many stocks touched their low for the day. In spite of favorable trade news and record production, steels were weak. U. S. Steel fell off 2⅞ points to 108¼, Bethlehem B 1⅞ to 97½, Republic Iron and Steel 3½ to 86⅝, and Crucible Steel 1⅞ to 88.

Baldwin Locomotive was an exception to the list in general, being strong at all times. Reading was weak, showing a loss of 1 point at 87; Union Pacific lost a half at 124, and New Haven ⅝ at 41⅛; New York Central was up ¼ at 73⅜.

There was special weakness in Texas Company which sold down to 152, a loss of 4⅛ points. American Telephone & Telegraph touched 98⅝, off 1⅝, and Western Union 90⅜, off 2⅛.

General Motors was off 2, at 122¼; American Can 1⅜, at 46⅛; Central Leather 1, at 68. Coppers were dull.

There was activity in the shipping section. Marine preferred started up a point at 105, showed a slight loss later, but recovered and made a slight gain. Marine common opened at 30, ¼ off, and advanced a little. Atlantic Gulf opened at 112 and advanced to 113, which was 1⅝ over Saturday's closing.

The news that Director-General McAdoo had authorized nearly a billion dollars for railroad expenditures was favorable to rails, which showed strength.

In Boston, United Shoe Machinery reached 48, up 1⅛, and Boston & Maine sold at 32⅜, a gain of half a point.

Four hundred and ninety-two thousand shares of stock were sold in New York in the first two hours.

FITCHBURG ORDERED TO FURNISH QUOTA OF 100

Fitchburg, May 20.—Fitchburg has been ordered to furnish 100 men to the National Army between May 25 and June 2. Thirty-five will go to Camp Upton, N. Y., this week, and sixty-five to Fort Slocum, N. Y., later. In proportion to population, Fitchburg is sending more men to the National Army than any other city or town in the State. This is due to the relatively large proportion of the registrants here in Class 1. Excepting the Finnish Socialists, of whom there are several hundred here, 90 per cent. of the foreign-born registrants not naturalized have waived exemption as aliens.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 292, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the instructive information necessary.—Advertisement.

9 NEW MAJORS FOR ENLARGED BRIGADE

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 20.—Coincident with the start of the general staff school, a meeting of several superior officers at this cantonment was scheduled to be held here today to determine the manner in which the 151st Depot Brigade is to be enlarged. It is planned to increase the size of the brigade from one of eight battalions to one of twelve, and if this plan is carried out it will probably mean the assignment of nine new majors, as there are now only three majors in the brigade. Some of the captains who have been acting brigade battalion commanders are reported to be in line for a few of these berths, although nothing official has been announced.

Should the Depot Brigade be enlarged, many of the non-commissioned officers at present constituting the permanent personnel of the eight battalions will probably be shifted into the proposed four new battalions to form the nucleus of the new companies. It is also said that all of the commissioned officers now attached to the infantry regiments of the division are to be transferred into the Depot Brigade and either assigned or attached to the new battalions or to fill vacancies due to other transfers or promotions.

This proposed shake-up and general expansion of the Depot Brigade is in keeping with the report that the entire cantonment is to be turned into a recruiting depot after the 76th Division moves overseas.

Seven enlisted men, all of whom were graduate engineers before they joined the army, have been commissioned second lieutenants in the construction quartermasters' department and have been assigned to duty with the public utilities department at this cantonment. The new lieutenants are: H. A. Post of Winthrop, James Reynolds and Francis Cunningham of Lowell, James V. Boyle of Springfield, S. A. Keane of Malden, Avery Schiller of Spokane, Wash., and E. C. Oldham of Mound City, Va.

BONGARTZ, GERMAN ACE, GETS BULLET IN EYE

75 BEGIN STUDY UNDER ALLIED OFFICERS

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 20.—The general staff school opened here today and the course of instruction of approximately seventy-five field and staff officers under the members of the French and British military missions is scheduled to continue three weeks.

The officers named to attend the school include the commanders, adjutants, aides and liaison officers of both the infantry and artillery brigades, the field officers, machine gun captains and liaison officers of the infantry, artillery and engineer regiments, machine gun battalions, field signal battalion and division trains, members of the general staff section and the division quartermaster adjutant, inspector, ordnance officer and signal officer.

There are two sections to the school. The officers in one section are taking line and staff courses and those in the other section only the line course. Two lectures are given every forenoon in the division officers' club house, one for officers on the staff section and one for officers on both line and staff sections. The entire afternoon of each school day will be devoted to field manoeuvres, problems and exercises in connection with the work of the line and staff section.

A war strength platoon has been organized in each infantry regiment and these platoons are to be used in the war game that is to be played for the benefit of the officers attending the school.

EDITORIAL

It would be well if many visitors at Camp Devens would remember that one of the first things a soldier in the National Army is taught is to keep himself and the place where he lives clean. Civilians who may have been taking lunches into the cantonment and discarding the refuse wherever they may happen to be are only increasing the work of the soldiers.

Soldiers who are visited by picnickers are instructed to see that the grounds they occupy are properly policed when they leave, but the principal trouble is with those visitors who are out sight-seeing and who have no friends or acquaintances in the cantonment. It would require but a little more effort on the part of any party to see that their debris is properly disposed of instead of leaving it lying about on the ground.

The soldiers at Devens like to see visitors, but they are also proud of the appearance of their cantonment, which is second to none in the country. Help them keep it so.

SOCIAL SEASON FOR SAILORS CLOSES

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, May 20.—The dance and entertainment tonight at the East Armory will practically mark the end of the indoor social season for the boys of the receiving ship. Outdoor activities will take the place of teas, dances and entertainments during the next few months.

It has been a remarkable season, and if any sailor has felt himself shut out from social pleasures, it has been because committees of various kinds from all sorts of organizations has been unable to locate him.

The members of many women's organizations have made the entertainment of the boys their special care, and not a night has passed since last Fall that half a hundred or more of the boys have not enjoyed some kind of a social function arranged particularly for them.

ASK MEDAL FOR SOLDIER WHO SAVED TWO

By International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Major General Earnet have recommended that a life saving medal be conferred on Corporal Owen M. Morris of the Marine Corps, for heroic efforts in saving two officers from drowning in Santo Domingo.

Two officers, bathing, were swept off their feet by the undertow and carried out to sea. Corporal Morris, who was with the group, started to their assistance. He was compelled to return to the beach. He rested a moment and went back into the breakers. He swam to the officers, but could not catch them because of the seas. He started back for the beach just as one of the officers was swept into shallow water. Morris dragged him to the beach.

A few minutes later he again plunged into the sea and helped bring in the apparently lifeless body of the other officer.

Morris, although exhausted, drove the automobile with the second officer to Santo Domingo city, twelve miles away. Morris was unable to sit erect and had to support himself on the steering wheel. But he got the man to the hospital in time to save his life.

Corporal Morris is a native of Wapella, Ill., where he was born in 1896.

The Greatest Mother in the World

A Brief Glimpse of What Is Being Done in France

Mother of Fighting Men

Giving hot meals to 1,000,000 French soldiers every month.

Providing shower baths where they can bathe—and disinfecting their clothing while they are bathing—the soldiers, clean and refreshed, leave in a different frame of mind.

Making and distributing woolen mufflers, sweaters and warm socks to men facing the raw weather in the trenches.

Handing out monthly over 200,000 cold drinks in Summer, steaming bouillon or coffee in Winter to soldiers entering and leaving the front-line trenches.

Mother of Shelled Households

Six hundred ruined towns in France! In many of these the old men, the women and children cling to the shells of their ruined homes. These people, contented and prosperous four years ago, must depend on Red Cross warehouses for the bare necessities of life.

Mother of Refugees

The housing of over 1,200,000 refugees in France is a staggering problem which the Red Cross is tackling in co-operation with the French Government.

Mother of Wounded Men

Furnishing about 2500 nurses for the work in France.

Supplying medical and surgical supplies to over half the hospitals in France.

Manufacturing and furnishing nitrous oxide gas, an anaesthetic destined to save the lives of the thousands of boys so weak they would die under ether on the operating table.

Mother of Cripples

Over half-a-hundred schools have been established for the re-education of mutilated soldiers in France. Cripples are taught to become once more self-supporting members of society.

A factory for the making of artificial limbs of the best type has been established near Paris.

Mother of Children

This year the aim is to reduce the number of deaths of young infants in France from 80,000 a year to 40,000. In some form or other the Red Cross is caring for 50,000 French children. American standards of child welfare are applied so far as possible.

BABE RUTH IS TO FACE INDIANS

Sox Iron Man Takes First Crack at Speaker, Wood & Co.—Fohls Here Four Games

By NICK FLATLEY.

The real showdown of the Eastern and Western strength of the American League started today at Fenway Park, when Tris Speaker, Joe Wood, Lee Fohl and the Indian host of lesser lights opened a series with the Red Sox.

Thus far the Barrow brigade has won six out of seven battles against the athletes from the far parts, but the big test looms immediately ahead.

After a slump that bade fair to shoot them out of the league, the local heroes have returned to their best form and, right now, can take a lot of beating and then come back in the ninth inning or threeabouts and win out.

The Indians, out-and-out pennant contenders, are here for four games. Then come the White Sox, good as ever, and apparently all set to retain their clutch on the coveted gonfalon as they call it in some circles.

The invaders have done fairly well thus far on their eastern excursion, and, according to all signs, are just about straightened out into that well known mid-season form. The only T. Speaker is hitting as usual, which is unusual when you stop to think of it, and the Fohl pitchers have been delivering.

Rugby, Morton and Coveleskie have been the main reliances thus far, with Bob Groom looming up as just about ready to do damage to aspirants of other outfits.

Smoky Joseph Wood has come back to the game as utility man and outfielder. He's building up a reputation as a hitter, and will undoubtedly be put in before the team departs from the ball yard he helped make famous; in fact, he was down to star in left field.

Battering Babe Ruth was in line to do the Sox pitching, he not having worked his wing much since beating Detroit on the first day here.

Working in the outfield, according to the Herculean himself, is just enough exercise to keep the arm feeling right. While Babe is in there, Whiteman will have a chance to patrol out in left field.

PING BODIE HURT AND HIGH SUBBING FOR HIM

New York, May 20.—Ping Bodie, slugging left fielder of the Yankees, who has been out of the line-up since Friday, when he was cracked in the ribs by one of Allen Sothoron's fast ones, will scarcely redon his spangles until the last of the week.

Hughie High substituted for Bodie Saturday, and his failure to lump the ball a la Ping Bodie helped the Brownies winning by a one-run margin.

CHET THOMAS BECOMES MEMBER OF INDIANS

Chet Thomas, former Red Sox backstop and until recently a member of the Athletic's receiving corps, has been purchased by the Cleveland Indians, and is expected to join the Fohlmen during their stay at Fenway Park.

Corbett's Corner

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

A STORY appeared in this column about two weeks ago which furnished statistics on the world series battles, showing the comparative records made by the National and American leagues over a sweep of fourteen campaigns. The article pointed out that, despite the fact that the American League had a big "edge" in the matter of championships, it didn't show up very superior in run scoring, hitting or in defensive play.

This article provoked many letters, among them being one which said, in part:

"Your story was a splendid one, but why don't you go farther and give us a statistical article which shows what each league accomplished during the first seven years, and also during the past seven years?

"As everyone knows, the National League was the dominating league up to about 1910. Since that time the American League has made gigantic strides, and by far outstrips the National in all-around baseball ability. At least that is my opinion. Would the figures back me up in this?"

This fan's letter really brought up a very fine point, and because the following out of his idea appeals to me as the basis for a rather interesting story I have written it herewith:

There have been fourteen modern world series conflicts since the revival in 1903, so that the battling for the world series honors can be divided into two sections; the first section embracing the seven years from 1903 to 1910 inclusive, and the second section from 1911 to 1917 inclusive.

In my earlier story I stated that the two leagues, over a period of fourteen world series campaigns, were rather evenly matched with regard to defensive and offensive play. However, when the fourteen seasons are split into two sections it shows the following:

FIRST SEVEN YEARS.

(1903-1905-1906-1907-1908-1909-1910).

	American.	National.

Good batting av'ge.	.228	.263
Assists	529	611
Errors	73	73
Grand fielding av'ge.	.959	.952
*Nine to game.

This table covering the second period—the seven years from 1911 to 1917 inclusive—shows the great superiority of the American League in every division of baseball except stolen bases:

SECOND SEVEN YEARS.

GOSSIP OF GLOVELAND

By J. P. MURPHY

PROVIDED EVERYTHING goes through as scheduled, the Armory A. A. will present a bouncing bill, with four finishes of feature bouts, following tomorrow night's exhibition of which, at that time, some of the most excited cards arranged by the Back Bay club in a long time.

AS DAN already been announced by the AMERICAN, Tommy Dixon of Boston and Jim Eagan of Dorchester will furnish the main go to the Arena, May 29. Then the week will follow: Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford vs. Jimmy Dundee of New York, June 4; Eddie Sheridan of Roxbury vs. Fred Iser of Australia, June 5, and Battling Levinsky of New York vs. Jack Dempsey of Salt Lake City, June 18.

DEMPSEY is rated one of the best of the heavyweight prospects and his appearance here, especially against a son of Levinsky's ability, is found to create interest.

THE WISE Spider Kelly of California recently told Ed W. Smith, noted baseball writer of the Chicago American, that Dempsey is "one of the greatest fighters we have ever had, and will be the next champion if given the proper chance."

TERRY FROOKS, rugged West End battler, and Pete Hartley of New York are underlined to furnish the principal entertainment at the Arena tomorrow night. Another ten will bring together Johnny Jack of South Boston and Tommy Rito of Paterson, N. J., while the third number on the same distance has Larry Burns of South Boston and Packey Homoyer of Lynn. The eight-round curtain-raiser will be between Panama Joe Gans and Joe Rivers of Gloucester.

KID JULIAN of Rochester, N. Y., a newcomer to these parts, meets Young Ondash of Somerville, Boston in the feature act to at twelve rounds at the Commercial A. A. Friday night. The ten-round semi-final shows Chick Hayes of Indianapolis and Kid Henry of Newark, N. J. There will also be two six-round bouts.

FRANKIE (YOUNG) BRITT has been matched to box Joe Mooney of New York at the Whaling City A. C. of New Bedford, the morrow night. The same pair engaged in a rugged session at the Commercial A. C. a few months ago, Britt winning the decision after he had been floored twice.

TOMMY ROBSON of Malden treks to Lawrence Thursday night to engage Augie Ratner of New York in a twelve-round bout at the Unity Cycle Club. This will be the second meeting between these boys, Robson being declared the winner in their contest at the Grand Opera House several months ago, although many of the spectators, including the writer, thought Ratner was entitled to a draw.

CHELSEA SHOWS PAIR OF FISTIC WHIRLWINDS

CARD AT DOUGLAS A. C.

Main bout: Al Shubert of New Bedford vs. Gussie Lewis of Philadelphia, 124 pounds ringside, twelve rounds.

Semi-final: Walter Bartlett of Lawrence vs. Young Alger of Roxbury, ten rounds.

Referee: Jack Moore.
Starting time: 7:45 p. m.

By J. P. MURPHY.

Gussie Lewis of Philadelphia, claimant of Johnny Kilbane's featherweight title, now that the Clevelander is in retirement, and rated one of the best boys of his poundage in the country, will be put to a thorough test tonight when he stacks up against Al Shubert, rightly named New Bedford "Bear cat," in the principal bout of twelve rounds at the Douglas A. C., Chelsea.

A little over a year ago this same pair furnished a whirlwind setto in the Quaker City, both claiming first honors at the conclusion of hostilities.

Ever since the two battlers have been eager to get at each other again, and it was only the cleverness and ingenuity of Matchmaker Jack Leonard that brushed aside all obstacles in the way of the return bout.

Lewis, kid brother of Harry Lewis, is now a welterweight of considerable note, has been fighting professionally only three years, but in that time he has engaged in over 150 bouts.

Shubert, on the other hand, among others, Pete (Kid) Herman, bantamweight champion; Frankie Burns of Jersey City; Frankie Brown, Benny Valgar, Joe Tuber, Billy Fitzsimmons, Benny Kaufmann, Bennie McNeil, Jack Toland, Young McGovern and a host of other good ones.

Shubert's last important engagement in the Hub was against Eddie Campi, California whirlwind, to whom he lost on a hair-line decision at Hibernian Hall, Roxbury.

His return tonight has stirred up plenty of excitement in his home town, as is evidenced by the fact that over 200 rooters will accompany him to Chelsea. They will occupy a special section at the Douglas Club.

According to the articles of agreement the boys will come in at 124 pounds, ringside, which should be an easy figure for both.

BOSTON TENNIS TEAM SEEKING CHURCH CUP

The first match between tennis teams of Philadelphia for the Church Cup will take place at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, June 7 and 8. New York and Boston play on the first day, with the winner meeting Philadelphia on the second day.

Richard Bishop, C. Johnson and Nat Niles are selecting the Boston team; Frederick R. Alexander is choosing the players to represent New York, and Howard W. Lewis will name Philadelphia's representatives.

BRAVES COLLIDE WITH REDS IN FOUR GAMES

Stallings' Men Hitting Rapid Clip and Confident of Success in Mattyland

Cincinnati, May 20.—The Boston Braves are here for four games with Christie Mathewson's fast-stepping Reds, who have just got through taking four out of five from Jawn McGraw's alleged invincible machine.

The Braves, despite their lowly rank in the scramble, are going at a mighty rapid clip themselves. Since coming West they have won the series from the Cubs and Cardinals. Their record since hitting this section is 5-3. Hence, the local matinees promise to prove mighty spicy.

Synopsis of the big winning counter: Wiseland, first up in the second, singled and reached second when catcher Snyder threw to Paulette trying to pick him off first. Red Smith busted a liner past Hornsby and Wiseland registered.

ARTILLERY GETS GOING.

Just as Manager Stallings predicted: "All we need is a hit in the pinch; we cannot improve on the pitching." By hitting in the pinches, the Braves annexed the last three games from the Cardinals.

Stallings, arriving in the West, did not present any excuses for the poor start of his club. He won two out of three from the Cubs. He lost the opener in St. Louis, 7 to 2, in ten innings, and the next, 3 to 1, against Leon Ames.

Following the second defeat, the team uncorked a series of husky swats and annihilated the Cardinals in the third and fourth combats.

Southpaw Hearn handed out the ciphers yesterday. In all the big fellow pitched eighteen innings against the Cardinals and allowed but two runs. With the breaks he would have scored two shut-out victories.

SMITH POUNDING PELLET.

Next to Hearn's pitching, the feature of the St. Louis visit was the swatting of Jay Carlisle Smith. Here's what Head of against Jack Hendricks' pitchers:

Fifth game: Singled to left, scoring Wiseland with the lone run of the battle. Put out of the game in third inning.

Fourth game: Three singles, a walk and sacrifice hit.

Third game: A single, double, two walks and sacrifice hit.

Second game: A single, walk and fly to Cruise.

First game: Two singles, a pop to Snyder and sacrifice hit.

Total—At bat, twelve times; hits, nine; average, .750.

Dick Conway has gone to his home at St. Paul. His mother is seriously ill and he has been given permission to remain away until she is out of all danger.

SHIFT MADE IN FRESHMAN EIGHT

Morris Dropped from Harvard Junior Crew—Captain Borland placed at No. 6

Coach William Haines has decided on another change in the rowing order of his first Harvard freshmen crew, and in bringing it about has dropped Dave H. Morris, Jr., who rowed at No. 6 in the Princeton race.

Captain John N. Borland, 2d, who has rowed stroke and No. 4 in the eight, already has been brought from the latter position back to No. 6, and Gardner Sutton, a Noble and Greenough alumnus, has been sent up from the second crew to No. 4 in the first. Coach Haines has already given the rearranged crew a trial spin and planned to push it very hard this afternoon in a two-mile race, with the second university and freshman crews forming the opposition.

Morris, who is a growing boy, did not appear to be developed well enough to take upon himself the strain necessary at No. 6. After one or two of the trips down the river this Spring he was all fagged out, and the decision then was made to replace him, though the New York lad may possibly row later.

Captain Borland is proving his versatility by rowing just as strongly in his new position as he did at No. 4. He comes of a rowing family, his father, William G. Borland, a New York financier, having captained and rowed on a Harvard crew.

The present order of the first freshman eight is: Strode, M. E. Olmstead; No. 7, S. Damon; No. 6, J. N. Borland; No. 5, R. M. Sedgwick; No. 4, G. Sutte; No. 3, T. T. Pond; No. 2, J. Slee; bow, W. Davis; coxswain, Peirson.

The freshman eight opposing Yale, '21, will furnish the chief attraction at the annual Spring regatta next Saturday afternoon, and the second crews of each university will also meet on the course. Coach Ed Brown has lost four of his junior eight, but hopes to whip a boatload of the available material into shape to oppose the Yale invaders.

Saturn and Mars in Command

JUPITER now sets so early that he may be regarded as virtually eliminated from the sky, leaving Saturn, in Cancer, and Mars, in Leo, as the only two naked-eye planets in view. Curiously, these are the two evil planets of the astrologers.

This Day in History

THIS is the anniversary of the death in 1506 of Christopher Columbus at Valladolid. He was buried in Seville. In 1542 his bones were removed to Haiti. In 1795 they were transferred to Havana and in 1808 finally returned to Seville.

Women in War Work

HOW THEY MAY FIND EMPLOYMENT

Miss Ellam Will Give Advice and Aid Through This Column in Answer to Letters

By Elizabeth Ellam

This column is designed especially to help the woman who is looking for war work, at the present time. It is not a free employment bureau, but it is intended rather as a directory for those who do not know where to go to find the desired employment, whether it is voluntary or for a wage.

No addresses will be given in this column, save those that relate to State or Federal business. No letters will be answered personally unless a stamp is enclosed for reply.

Write to me briefly, specifically telling me what you have done, what you can do, and what your ambitions are in doing your bit toward the winning of the war. Remember we cannot all work in munitions factories, neither can we all become machinists over night, taking the place of men in machine shops.

All Do Something.

But we can all do something, and by all doing that something and doing it well, we may release a man to go "over there," with our brothers, our husbands and our sweethearts, to fight for us.

Now let me give you a little advice. To be a munition worker you must be between the ages of twenty-one and forty. No older women are wanted, as the work is hard and women must be strong and active and able to stand it. The trouble reported by many employment agencies is that the women applying for munitions work are in the sixties and even the seventies. You must be young and strong, if you want to work in a munitions factory.

Here is another thing to remember. Many women are anxious to enroll for farm and garden work for the Summer. Mrs. William A. Copeland, for the Women's National Farm and Garden Association at No. 4 Joy street, is receiving those enrollments. But do not go to Mrs. Copeland for any other kind of employment. She is working on farm enrollments only.

No full names will be signed to letters printed in this column, unless specially requested. All letters must be signed, however, and the initials will be used when they are published. Here is a letter received today:

Dear Miss Ellam—Do you think it possible for me to get any paid work to do at home, in the sewing line or anything else? I am very anxious to earn some money, but have two children, so am unable to leave home to do any work.

B. B. B.

Elmwood.

You do not specify that this is war work. I am writing you a personal letter that will probably give you some suggestions.

Dear Miss Ellam:

In an article written by you in the Boston AMERICAN, regarding the various opportunities for women in war works, of different kinds, you refer to telegraphy and government service. May I impose upon your time to ask how to go about it?

H. D. B.

Malden.

In the article to which you refer, I stated that the Western Union offered opportunities for women—or men either—who desired to learn telegraphy. If you will communicate with the Western Union at No. 169 Congress street, you will receive all the information necessary. The tuition is free, and hours are arranged as far as possible to suit the convenience of the pupils, most of whom are engaged in some other work while learning.

Want Farm Work

And still another letter, this time from a group of girls who wish to go on a farm for the Summer.

Dear Miss Ellam:

Five girls wish to know how to go about enrolling for farm work for the Summer months. Where can we apply—and how go about it? Any information that you give us will be greatly appreciated.

L. W.

West Chelmsford.

If you will enroll with the Women's National Farm and Garden Association at No. 4 Joy street you will probably be enabled to go to some farm in the same unit, and remain together throughout the Summer. A girl must be eighteen to enlist, but this is practically the only requirement.

All Star Recipes

Kidney Bean Stew

U. S. Food Administration.

One and a half cups dried kidney or other beans, 2 cups canned tomatoes, ½ cup rice, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 onion, 1 tablespoon salt. Wash the beans, put in covered kettle, and soak over night in two quarts of cold water. Cook the beans slowly in the water in which they were soaked. If necessary, add more water to cover and continue the cooking until they are nearly tender, usually about two hours. Wash the rice, cut up the onion and add with the tomatoes to the beans. Cook until rice is tender—about 30 minutes. Mix the flour with a little cold water and stir in carefully to thicken. A small piece of salt pork cut up in cubes and added to the beans at the beginning of the cooking gives a pleasant flavor to the dish.

Baked Beans With Samp

One pint navy or kidney beans, 1 cupful samp or coarse hominy, ¼ pound salt pork or bacon, 2 tablespoonfuls molasses, 2 teaspoonfuls salt, 1 teaspoonful pulrifax, ½ teaspoonful baking soda. Soak the beans and samp over night in two quarts of water containing the baking soda. In the morning drain, cover with cold water, and boil until the skins break; then add the other ingredients—the pork should be cut in cubes—place in a beanpot and bake for several hours; all day in a fireless cooker is not too long. In the Summer omit the samp, and half an hour before serving stir in one pint of raw corn cuff from the cob and seasoned to taste. Finish baking as usual.

Baked Beans

Four cupfuls beans, ½ pound salt pork, 4 tablespoonfuls molasses, ½ tablespoonfuls mustard, 1 tablespoonful sugar. Beans that have been soaked over night, simmer until tender. Drain, pour one-half of beans into bean pot; add salt, sweetening and mustard. Put in salt pork and remaining beans and cover with boiling water. Cover bean pot and bake in a slow oven eight hours. The last hour cook uncovered.

Kidney Stew.

Two lamb's kidneys, 2 cups water, 2 slices onion, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour.

Cut kidneys into pieces after taking off skin. Drain and simmer in two cups water and onion until tender. Melt butter; add flour and seasoning; add thickened water used in cooking. Make gravy and serve with war bread.

How to Renovate Clothes

By Rita Stuyvesant

DID it ever occur to you how much a year you spend in renovating your clothes? It is quite astonishing how quickly the tailor's bill and the cleaner's bill adds up. City girls are too apt to fall into the rut of saying, "Oh, send it to the tailor's to be pressed or mended," and yet there are any number of little "jobs" that can be done at home, with considerable saving. These days, when every one is buying Liberty Bonds and thrift stamps, a saving on clothes is quite a help.

First, are you in the habit of wearing white kid gloves once and then sending them to the cleaners? This is not only an expensive practice, but nothing is harder on kid gloves than constant cleaning.

Have plenty of cleaning fluid and several small wads of cotton handy and do only one glove at a time. Pour a bit of the cleaner in a cup and place one glove on with the free hand and squeeze out the cleansing fluid from a bit of cotton until it seems quite dry and rub the dirt off the glove a bit at a time. As the cotton becomes dirty take a fresh piece, but do not throw the dirt out into the gasoline. Sponge the dirt from the surface, being careful not to get the glove really wet. This practical method will eliminate your cleaner's bill.

Silk or wool sweaters from last season that have become soiled can also be cleaned at home. There are a number of good "shaved soap" preparations on the market that make a dandy, fluffy lather for just such articles. Use lukewarm water and gently dip the sweater up and down in the suds, rubbing it lightly between the hands until clean. Rinse in warm water, then cooler, but do not immediately drop a sweater in cold water, or it is liable to shrink.

Some women drop the wet garment in a pillow case and hang it in the air, while others put the sweater on a wire hanger to dry. Both methods are satisfactory. With a little care you will be able to save several dollars by cleaning your sweater at home.

Delicate georgette frocks that have come forth from trunks or closets in a dowdy condition can have their freshness renewed at home in the same way. Of course, if the frock has any unusual trimming, such as black velvet or ribbon, it must be removed. The warm suds bath and a pressing with a warm (not hot) iron will work wonders in a georgette frock.

A white georgette frock that is now tinged with yellow can be dipped a delicate flesh pink, after it is washed. Preparations for tinting delicate materials can be bought at any good drug store, but are not classed as dyes.

If you want to look fresh and well groomed at a small cost get busy with the war-time spirit of thrift and renovate your own clothes.

TO COOK FRESH VEGETABLES

The following recipes are from "War Food Bulletin No. 17" issued by the New York Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense. The committee, co-operating with the Federal Food Administration, selected these recipes with a view of meeting the needs of the average family of moderate income, in connection with the conservation of foods and the substitutes that can be utilized in the interests of our war.

Savory Parsnips

Six medium-sized parsnips, ¼ cupful water, 1 pound sausage meat, flour, salt.

Wash parsnips thoroughly and boil in salted water until tender. Drain, wipe dry, and peel. Cut in two lengthwise or leave whole as desired. Surround each with a coating of sausage meat, roll in flour, arrange in a flat dish, pour the water in dish, sprinkle with salt, and bake 20 minutes in hot oven. Garnish with parsley.

A New Way to Cook Carrots

Four medium-sized carrots, four tablespoonfuls flour, two tablespoonfuls drippings, one teaspoonful salt, one cupful hot water. Wash and scrape the carrots. Cut in thin slices crosswise. Put the drippings into a skillet and brown slightly. Mix the carrots with flour and salt, so that each slice of carrot is well coated with the flour. When the fat has browned put the carrots in the pan and brown slightly. Add hot water and turn the flame low, or cook on the back of range until tender, about forty minutes.

The Passing of Youth

By BRICE BELDEN, M. D.

SOME years ago a French physician called the attention of the medical profession to certain phenomena in men passing middle age.

Like all perfectly new ideas, the Frenchman's notion startled the world and aroused its incredulity. His contribution has also furnished the humorist with considerable material for jests.

But the conviction has grown that no joke is involved in this matter. Certain things really do happen to men's minds and bodies which are distinctive and peculiar.

Of late years, by reason of the increasing pressure of civilized life, and by reason of excessive nutrition, lack of proper exercise, bad habits, etc., men have shown an increasing tendency to break down before the age of fifty. Everyone has heard a great deal recently about the degenerative diseases that are making their appearance in men so much earlier than ever before. By the degenerative diseases we commonly mean certain affections of the heart, kidneys and blood vessels.

Now, there is a special significance in this breaking down of men. The significance is that there is a critical age for men. If they have lived hard they naturally suffer more at the critical period. If they have lived wisely they pass through the change with little or no disturbance.

If a man has lived a clean life and the stormy period is weathered successfully there is a final striking of good balance. As a kind of compensation for some loss of physical virility there is often experienced an increase of the intellectual faculties.

"Some" Likeness

An old countryman and his wife had been photographed for the first time.

The proof was held up for inspection, as though it were a document of the greatest importance. The couple looked at it long and searchingly, and the photographer was beginning to get anxious, when the old countryman suddenly burst out with:

"By gum, hasn't 'e'd hedge taken well!"

The Phonograph in India

The universality of the phonograph is much in evidence in India, especially in the centres of population. Talking machines are very largely used in Madras among those who have means to buy, beyond the bare necessaries, certain comforts or luxuries which cost only a moderate amount.

THE FOUR OF HEARTS

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

MR. AND MRS. LIVINGSTONE had tickets for the theatre this evening. Therefore, soon after dinner, the car came for them and they went away, leaving Cynthia alone.

"You will not be lonely, however," Mrs. Livingstone remarked, smilingly. "For the Prince Charming will be here soon. I know you and he will have much to talk about these days, for the wedding is drawing rapidly near. And under such conditions young people find their plans a never-failing subject of conversation."

The face into which she looked did not flush. Indeed, the matron fancied for a moment that it paled slightly. Cynthia was peculiar, she reflected. She, Mrs. Livingstone, would feel easier when the wedding was over. She had worked hard to bring about this match. She was sure, of course, that it would come off all right and yet the prospective bride appeared so unenthusiastic and non-committal.

Cynthia, left to her own devices, walked uneasily up and down the drawing room, then strayed into the library. The fire was not lighted here, for the evening was mild. The shaded lamps made the room very attractive and cozy, but she did not sit down. A spirit of restlessness possessed her.

She went out into the hall and glanced up the stairs. Was Dora awake? As if in answer to her question, Marie, Mrs. Livingstone's maid, appeared in the door leading to the rear of the house.

"Miss Dora's bells just rung," she remarked. "I'll go up and see what she wants."

"Don't bother, Marie—I'll go myself," Cynthia said. "If she wants you, I will ring again."

"Oh, Cyn, is that you?" Dora asked as her cousin came into her room. "I sent for Marie just to find out where you were."

"I'm glad I came instead of Marie, then," Cynthia rejoined. "Do you want something to eat, dear?"

"No," Dora answered with a little shudder of disgust. "Mother made me take some toast and tea before I went to sleep. I have had a long nap and my head is better. What are you doing this evening?"

"Nothing just now. Gerald is coming later. Is there anything I can do for you before then?"

"Yes," Dora admitted. "Come and sit down with me in the dark by me and talk to me. I'm awfully forlorn."

"Are you sure I won't make your head worse?" Cynthia queried. "Your mother wants you to keep quiet."

"You will not make my head worse, and I don't care what mother wants," Dora retorted. "What she does not know won't hurt her. And she won't know you have been with me."

Cynthia drew a chair up to the side of her cousin's bed. "I am sorry you have been suffering so, dear," she sympathized.

"Oh—Cyn—it's not my head that hurts!" the girl exclaimed. "It did ache, I acknowledge. But that was only because I was so unhappy. I may as well say it frankly—for I let myself go this afternoon so you know all about it. I don't want to get married, Cyn."

"They why do you?" Cynthia asked calmly.

"You know why!" the girl burst forth. "Father and mother expect it. So does Milton."

"You don't love Milton."

The words were not accusatory. They were more like the simple statement of a self-evident fact.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Nothing to Talk About

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I expect to become engaged to a girl I have known for some time and am about to visit her people, but am at a loss as to what is proper for me to do. Her mother has no objection to sheltering me for the night, but the girl would rather have me stay at a hotel. The reason she gives is that women might talk and that would put her in an embarrassing position.

C. A. M.

WITH her mother's consent it will be perfectly proper for you to accept the hospitality of the young lady's family. There is absolutely nothing in the situation that could cause the most "gossipy" women to make any comment.

Are You Ashamed of Your Hands?

It is an old saying that a woman's hands tell her age and social standing better than her face. There is no excuse for any woman to have rough, red, coarse hands, no matter how much housework she may do. Just use the perfected preparation that keeps the hands wonderfully soft and youthful looking. It is called "Le-mur" (French white. It is called "Le-mur" (French for Cream L'Ame). You get enough for weeks for only a few cents from any of the big stores. All you do is to apply it after you wash your hands, and delighted you go outdoors. You will be delighted to see the quick improvement in your hands. It is also splendid for the face, a plaster for rough skin, a thousands of feet and enlarged pores. Thousands of women use Le-mur's as the most wonderful beauty-cream they ever used. It is truly a beautifier of the hair. There is guaranteed not to injure the face powder also a delightful Le-mur face powder that is guaranteed absolutely pure and that is entirely different from any other face that stays on better than any other face powder. Happy Jack Squirrel's Thrift Club

By Thornton W. Burgess

Peter Rabbit Disconsolate

PETER RABBIT was dis-con-so-late.

That looks like a big word, but say it quickly and you won't find it so big after all. It means to be unhappy and forlorn, and this is just what Peter Rabbit was—disconsolate. Yes, sir, Peter was all of this. You know Peter cannot bear to be left out of things. Most of us don't like to be, but when it happens to Peter he is quite upset. This was what was ailing him now. Here it was a perfectly good day with jolly, round bright Mr. Sun shining his broadest, and the Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind dancing this way and that way, and everybody else seemingly as happy as could be and he, Peter, was dis-con-so-late.

The fact is Peter had just heard of a new club which had been formed in the Green Forest, and he hadn't been invited to join. Some of his best friends had joined, but no one had asked him to and he felt hurt. He was left out and just because he was left out it seemed to him that nothing in all the Great World was so much to be desired as an invitation to join that club. Perhaps you know how it was.

Peter had first heard of that new club very early that morning when he visited the old stonewall on the edge of the Green Forest for a bit of gossip with bright-eyed Striped Chipmunk. When he first got there no one was in sight, but presently along the old stonewall came Striped Chipmunk with the pockets in his cheeks stuffed so full of something that his head was twice as big as it ought to be, and but for his coat he wouldn't have looked like Striped Chipmunk at all.

"Hi there!" cried Peter. "What's your rush?"

Striped Chipmunk didn't say a word. He couldn't. His mouth was too full. He didn't stop, either. He scurried right along, but as he passed Peter he snapped his eyes at him and he jerked his tail in a funny way, as if he were trying to talk with them. But Peter didn't understand and he was still staring rather stupidly at the place where Striped Chipmunk had disappeared between the stones of the old wall, wondering what was the matter with Striped Chipmunk, when up popped the latter's head and behold it was right and proper and quite as it should be.

Before Peter could get over his surprise at seeing Striped Chipmunk appearing right and proper and quite as he should when only a moment before he had appeared all wrong and quite as he shouldn't, Striped Chipmunk started off again as fast as he could go along the top of the old stonewall.

"Hi!" cried Peter, hopping along the ground just below. "Hi there, you striped pinch-of-nothing! Wait a minute!"

Striped Chipmunk stopped very abruptly and sat up on top of a big stone. "Don't you call me a pinch-of-nothing! Don't you dare to, Peter Rabbit!" he scolded, and he looked so indignant that Peter had to turn aside to hide a smile.

"I won't do it again if you'll tell me why you are in such a hurry this fine morning," replied Peter.

Right away Striped Chipmunk forgot his anger. "Because I'm a member of the new club my cousin, Happy Jack Squirrel, has started," said he proudly. "So of course I have to be busy," he added as an afterthought.

Peter's long ears pointed straight up and his eyes looked as if they might pop out of his head if he didn't watch out. "What's that?" he exclaimed. "Did you say something about a club?"

"I certainly did," replied Striped Chipmunk. "That big, gray-coated cousin of mine is a nuisance sometimes, but once in a while he has a good idea and this is one of the best he has ever had. I wish I had thought of it myself. It's a pity you didn't belong, Peter."

"But what is it?" Peter was fairly dancing with impatience. "You haven't told me what it is you—you—you——"

Striped Chipmunk's eyes snapped warningly. "I didn't say it," declared Peter hastily. "I didn't even really think it, Striped Chipmunk. Please tell me about that club. Why can't I join it if somebody asks me to?"

"Because it's a thrift club, that's why. It's Happy Jack's Thrift Club and no one can join it unless he is thrifty. Now I guess you see why you can't join," said Striped Chipmunk.

Peter Rabbit stroked his whiskers thoughtfully. Then he scratched his long left ear with his long right hind foot. After this he scratched his long right ear with his long left hind foot. Then he looked up at Striped Chipmunk sheepishly.

"What is thrift?" asked Peter.

"What's that?" demanded Striped Chipmunk as if he thought he hadn't heard quite right.

"What is thrift?" repeated Peter.

"I might have known it," declared Striped Chipmunk in such a tone of disgust that Peter looked more foolish than ever. "I might have known you wouldn't know what thrift is, or how to be thrifty. You watch me for awhile and perhaps you'll learn."

With this off darted Striped Chipmunk, leaving Peter looking very foolish and somewhat troubled. Presently Striped Chipmunk was back with his cheeks stuffed just as they had been when Peter first saw him. He vanished in the same place in the old wall and presently popped out again with empty pockets. Two or three times the same thing happened before Peter got up courage enough to ask another question.

"What are you taking down in that old wall?" he asked.

"Food," replied Striped Chipmunk promptly.

"What for?" demanded Peter with a puzzled air.

"To eat next winter when food will be scarce," replied Striped Chipmunk. "That is thrift, Peter," he added as he prepared to start for another load. "It is just plain, commonsense, everyday thrift. Think it over."

Peter did. In fact he couldn't find anything else to do. There was no one to play with except Johnny Chuck, and Johnny was too fat and lazy to play. Everybody else seemed to have joined Happy Jack's Thrift Club. Anyway that is the way it seemed to Peter. And this is why on such a fine morning he was dis-con-so-late, and why to save him he couldn't think of anything else but thrift and Happy Jack's new club.

OPEN BIG DRIVE FOR WORKERS ON FARMS

Dame Boston calls upon her sons and daughters to get into the drive for farm labor.

A circular letter was sent today to large employers of labor in Boston and the metropolitan district by Leon Sharmat, chairman of the Farm Labor Recruiting Committee of the Boston Public Safety Committee.

This letter appeals to the employers to impress upon their employes the advisability of spending their vacations on the farms and to enroll for service in various enrollment booths which are to be placed at convenient points.

It is in aid of the nation-wide farm labor campaign of the United States Public Service Reserve of which Colonel William A. Gaston is the head in Massachusetts.

More farm labor must be had to help win the war. The outdoor work is beneficial. Wages run as high, in some instances, as three and four dollars per day.

You help your country, help yourself and get paid for it.

The Boston drive begins Wednesday and runs a week. The Farm Labor Recruiting Committee of the Boston Public Safety Committee seeks to enroll at least 2,750 persons from Boston and the Metropolitan District.

The Farm Labor Recruiting Committee needs enrollment agents to be assigned to various stations. Volunteers for this service during the city drive are requested to report to the headquarters of the Boston Public Safety Committee and of the Farm Labor Recruiting Committee at Room 65 on the fifth floor at Boston City Hall.

Victor A. Heath, chairman of the Boston Public Safety Committee, is enrolling agents in Boston for the United States Public Service Reserve.

The enrollment booths for the city drive, as mentioned by Mr. Sharman's letter, are to be established in stores and at other convenient points.

The agents at these city enrollment stations will have the official egrollment cards, which have been issued by the United States Department of Labor.

If you can help Uncle Sam by doing some farm work this Summer—even if for vacation time only—enroll.

TRUCKS QUICK IN MEETING NEW CONDITIONS

By C. F. CONNOCKER.

No one thing has given such an impetus to the truck industry as the war and the congestion of freight on the railroads. While the manufacturers of motor trucks have been preparing for years the demands of the past few months have done more towards forming the production than years of ordinary transportation needs.

In commenting on this condition A. Shorey, manager of the New England Velie Company says:

"A notable achievement that the world war is effecting is the building up of the motor truck industry through the creation of a spirit of economy and efficiency in transportation.

"The demand for automobile trucks in this country during the past few months has increased to proportions little dreamed of before the start of the war, and the end is not in sight.

"Although the automobile truck has been a serviceable and practical commodity for a dozen years or more, many conservative houses retained their more costly and slower horse-drawn trucks at work. The cost of carrying, taking all points into consideration, was thereby greater than both short and long hauls. The past year has brought the question actively before users of transportation both large and small. Being simply a matter of facts and figures, a tremendous call for trucks of all kinds for all purposes suddenly sprung up. "Another factor that entered into this heavy increase in truck sales is the increasing cost of horses, due to the big demands made for cavalry and artillery animals. This high cost has now reached a figure that is prohibitive.

"A good illustration of growing importance of the motor truck is seen in the great increase in this department of business with the New England Velie Company. The Velie line of trucks is most complete, providing a chassis and body for every need, and the demand has been about equally heavy for every one of the models.

"While the freight car shortage is such a serious hindrance, and the necessities of life and war materials are demanding greater transportation facilities, the motor truck is proving an inestimable blessing. It has no substitute, in converting men and munitions quickly to points inaccessible by railroads along our extended coast and from place to place in the interior, in the stress of war, motor trucks will be of incalculable service. In Europe motor trucks are saving cities and winning battles. In our country they are helping to solve the problem of the high cost of living. They are replacing horses that must be conscripted for cavalry and they have put the old army wagon in the discard."

IDENTIFIES THIEF TOO STRONGLY, FINED $3

Justin McCarthy, thirty-nine, of Chestnut street, Chelsea, when in the Chelsea court today to identify a man who wore his clothes placed in his opinion of the episode so forcibly that he was fined $3 for contempt. Michael Galvin, who inspired his outbreak and who was identified as the thief by the police, was fined $10 on the island but appealed. The clothes were valued at $24.50.

Justin McCarthy, father of Westland avenue was found not guilty of operating an automobile without a license, he was fined $25, of which $20 was for running without rear lights and $10 for carrying a gun.

HEAVY EARLY CATCH OF MACKEREL HERE

Unprecedented catches of mackerel for this season of the year were reported at Commonwealth Pier today. Eight schooners brought in a total of 151,000 pounds, which sold for 15 cents a pound. It was also reported that 10,000 pounds had been brought into Newport, much of which would find its way to Boston, and 58,000 was reported at New Bedford. The demand for any mackerel to be caught at this time of year, and the heavy catches brought joy to the hearts of the fishermen.

No Real American Can Refuse to Give Liberally to the Red Cross

Give All You Can—Yourself—Urge Your Neighbors to Give—Remember Our Soldiers and Sailors Are Depending Upon Your Patriotism.

This is an hour when the cost of victory must not be considered.

VICTORY MUST be won.

We are sending men to fight for us by hundreds of thousands.

Willingly, cheerfully, they leave their country and their friends to fight the greatest battle in the history of the world.

Theirs is the supreme sacrifice.

They do far more for you than you can ever do for them.

You cannot stand beside them in the trenches. You cannot minister to them when they are ill or wounded. Thousands of miles stretch between you and them.

But those thousands of miles are bridged by a marvelous, efficient institution of mercy—the American Red Cross.

All that the Red Cross asks of you is your liberal, hearty support.

With the money you give it cares for your son or your brother—cares for them far better than you can do, for it has at its call all that science and skill can supply.

Its surgeons, the most skillful in all the world, are equipped to do every thing that can be done to cure the sick—to heal the wounded.

Its nurses, trained for their work, will care for the soldiers with the tenderness of mothers.

Every man who leaves America in khaki will be watched over as he would be watched over by those dearest to him, could they also cross the ocean and follow him to the battle lines.

Such a work as this cannot be carried on without money.

Week by week our army in France grows.

Week by week the duties of the Red Cross become more extended.

Supplies must be forwarded not by pounds, but by tons.

There must be no thought of expense in securing the best methods of treatment.

No drug is too rare or too costly to provide, if it will help to bring one soldier back to health and strength.

No device is too expensive to supply, if through its means the swift and kindly treatment of our wounded soldiers may be expedited.

This cost, fellow American, must be borne by us who stay behind.

It matters not how great it is, we must pay.

It matters not whether sacrifice is involved—the money must be raised.

The soldiers who hurried to respond to the call to arms took no thought of sacrifice.

Neither must those who stay behind.

It is an amount which can be readily raised from the great and as yet hardly touched resources of this country.

Any true American should be ashamed not to have a part in that fund.

There is no person among us who does not share the duty of giving—no matter what his income—no matter how much self-denial must be practiced in exercising it.

In other editorials we shall tell you some of the duties of the organization that has been effected by the Red Cross—how it bases its sources of supply in every town and village in the country—how it makes its errand of mercy follow the flag wherever the flag may go.

Such an organization has never before been effected by voluntary effort in the history of the whole world.

Eminent business and professional men have given up great incomes in order to devote to it their energy and ability and business genius.

In its ranks are enrolled thousands of men and women, all of them laboring with the single purpose of mitigating the horrors of war to the men who are engaged in it for our common cause.

There is not a trench in Europe where an American soldier stands which has not its Red Cross unit behind it.

There is not a soldier in the American uniform who is so far from home but that the merciful hand of the Red Cross does not stretch out to aid him.

Never before was it possible to transmute money into mercy as it is now, thanks to the great American Red Cross.

Your duty is slight compared to that of the men and women who are carrying on the work.

All you are asked to do is to give—give all you can spare and then more.

Give till it hurts, of course—no soldier is ever afraid to fight till it hurts.

Today all civilization is at stake.

Our troops and those of our allies are facing a merciless foe—a foe that must be conquered forever if peace is again to exist on the earth.

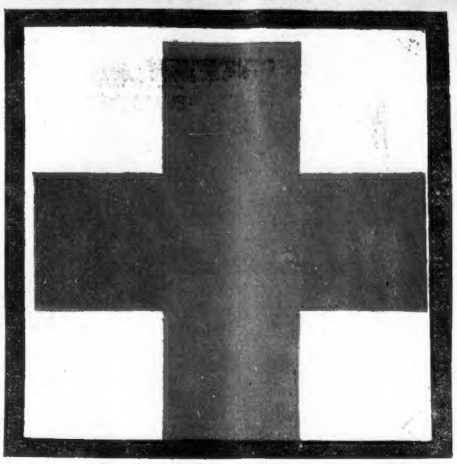
All that you have or may hope to have will be at stake until this victory is achieved. Your gift to the Red Cross may be the one that turns the tide.

Make it today, like a true American.

President Wilson
In His Proclamation of Red Cross week, said in part:

"And, inasmuch as the year of our own participation in the war has brought unprecedented demands upon the patriotism and liberality of our people;

"And, inasmuch as the duration of the war and the closer co-operation of the American Red Cross with our own army and navy, with the governments of our allies, and with foreign relief organizations, have resulted in the discovery of new opportunities of helpfulness under conditions which translate opportunity into duty, I hereby, etc."



H. P. Davison,
Chairman of the War Council of the Red Cross, says:

"In appealing to business organizations as well as individuals to join in making the Second War Fund the greatest outpouring of generosity and practical human sympathy in the history of mankind, I have no hesitation in saying that in that achievement a supremely effective step will have been taken to further strengthen the courage and the determination to endure on the part of our allies; to bring the war all the more quickly to that victorious end which can be its only possible conclusion."

MRS. WILSON WOODROW'S ARTICLE

The Bother With Most of Us Is That We Think With Our Hearts Instead of Our Heads—A Combination of the Two Is Needed

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

THIS is the story she writes me:

"Dear Mrs. Woodrow: I was married when I was twenty, and have never known one happy day since. I am twenty-seven now. When I first met my husband, he seldom worked. I tried to help him in every way, and when we were married I furnished our home. I also kept on working, while he did nothing, knowing that I would support him. When I was a girl I was very philanthropic, and being brought up that way I thought it my duty to him."

I will break off my correspondent's narrative here to say that the bother with most of us and the fruitful source of many of our troubles is that we think with our hearts and not with our heads. Good judgment arises from a combination of the two. No faculty was given us to remain unused. Having minds, we were intended to think with them, and to think to some purpose in the direction of our affairs.

This girl, naturally kind-hearted and sympathetic, was trained in the belief that she must always be helping others, which is right in principle. But there's a sane way to apply the principle and a foolish and suicidal way. And right here we come back to the old question, Am I my brother's keeper? I am not; no one is. A higher, greater, more omniscient power is his keeper and mine. I am here to aid and encourage him in assisting himself; that is all.

Her letter goes on:

"After three years a child was born. I could not go out to work, so I had to take work in the house. I also kept a few roomers who were friends of my husband. When the child was two years old I put him in charge of a woman and went back to business. But things got steadily worse, and I was forced to leave my husband and board with my child in order to support the little one.

"After a year my husband came and asked me to take him back, claiming that he had changed; so I gave him another chance. He was worse than ever, and again I had to leave him for the child's sake.

"He now threatens to take my child from me by force, saying that he will make his friends say that I am immoral. He says dreadful things to me which shock me. I work very hard for my living and try to be a good mother to my child. He doesn't give even one cent to its support. But even so, he will not stay away. I am earning $18 a week and can take care of myself and the child.

If the facts are correctly stated in this letter—and it bears every mark of sincerity—I can say most emphatically that the husband cannot take the child. The wife has nothing whatever to fear from him. Legally he has not a leg to stand on.

On the contrary, it is he who should be afraid. His wife could sue him for the support of herself and the child, and he could be put in jail if he did not pay the amount decided upon by the court.

The law is very reluctant in any case to take a child from its mother. It is only when she is proven to be an unfit guardian for it and unable to give it proper care that this is ever done.

MA'S GIRLS DEVELOP HER SORE HEART

By Winifred Black

HER two daughters are married, both happily, and neither of them love her any more.

The first daughter married against her wishes. She didn't like the man because she didn't know anything about him, so she opposed the marriage, and when the daughter married anyway she didn't speak to her for two or three years. Recently she has begun speaking again.

The other daughter, she says, doesn't love her either and thinks nothing of telling her so to her face. The two girls call their mother deceitful, emotional, hypocritical, business and a selfish egotist. All these pleasant things they say to her whenever they get a chance, and she writes to ask me what to think, what to feel and what to do about it.

Poor woman! What on earth can she think? What a harvest to reap after years and years of love, and what, no doubt, she supposed to have been deep devotion.

If I had two such daughters as these, I shouldn't be bored with them at all. I would simply forget that I had them, so far as yearning over them is concerned. I would make my own friends, live my own life and let them go their own ways in peace. If they wanted to quarrel and call names, let them do it among themselves.

It seems almost incredible to me that any girl in the world could talk so to her own mother. Truly there must have been something wrong from the very beginning, or the natural love of a daughter for her mother would have prevented any such outburst.

Wishes Only Happiness

Most girls never really appreciate their own mothers until they marry and have children of their own. Then they begin to realize how much their mothers have sacrificed for them, and how much they owe to mother's love and care. I have seen selfish, headstrong girls come home to visit for the first time after they have been married a year or so and fall into their mother's arms with a flood of tears, and tell her that they came half across the continent just to tell her that they never really appreciated her before.

A wise mother will not look too seriously at such a statement as this. Every woman who has lived at all knows that at the emotional period of life things are either always way up in the sky or way down beneath the earth. And a sensible, practical mother who has daughters who are either desperately happy or desperately miserable all the time will lift them out of their exasperation or folly good-humoredly, and with forgiveness in her heart before it is even asked for.

There's something all wrong when a mother quarrels with her own children. Either the children are absolutely unnatural, or the mother is absolutely unbearable. The world is so full of cruelty and indifference, and selfishness and deceit, that if we cannot find love and understanding in our own families and under our own roof trees, where in the world are we going to seek it?

Let Each Alone

I would rather live with a wild Indian from the plains—war paint, feathers and all—or in the same house with a savage from Boler Bolegar, with a nose ring and some heathen deity to whom she prayed night and day, than to spend one hour under the roof tree of a discordant, disagreeing family.

In the Long Run

By J. M. COX

EVERY dog will have its day
In the long run;
Every year will have its May
In the long run;
Therefore sing your gladdest lay,
Hope for little things, and say—
"Fortune's tide will come my way
In the long run."

Every sorrow finds its smile
In the long run;
Every path leads to a stile
In the long run;
If the way seems long and drear,
Struggle onward, do not fear,
All find home and welcome cheer
In the long run.

MYSTERIES OF MOON AND THE TIDES

By Garrett P. Serviss

"There is a point about the motion of the moon that I have never seen fully explained. We know that the moon turns on its axis in the same time it takes to move around the earth, but what I want to bring out is that this movement must be exact to the second, for otherwise the moon would, in the course of time, present a different face to the earth. Please explain the law governing this; also state if the present conditions will continue indefinitely, or if the rotation of the moon on its axis is not gradually becoming slower, in which case the side now hidden will be visible to the people of the earth in the far distant future.—W. T. McD., New London, Ill."

AS far as observation shows, the coincidence in time on the moon's rotation on its axis and revolution around the earth is exact. There are irregularities in the period of revolution, due to the varying effects of the attraction of other members of the solar system, and there are apparent changes in the rate of rotation, mainly due to the ellipticity of the moon's orbit, but in the long run these irregularities balance, so that the synchronism of rotation and revolution remains unaffected.

Even now owing to the apparent change in the rotation rate just mentioned, we can get glimpses of the ordinary invisible half of the moon, now around one edge and now around another, according as the moon in its orbit is a little ahead or a little behind its mean place, or the place where it would be if it traveled in a circle.

Tidal Friction

Whether the present conditions will forever exist, we do not know. A consideration of the causes which have brought the moon into its present situation will give some light on the question. It is generally believed that the chief agent in slowing down the rotation of the moon until its period became coincident in length with that of the revolution was "tidal friction," produced by the attraction of the earth when the moon was yet in a molten, viscous or plastic state.

The theory of George Darwin is that the moon was thrown off from the earth at a time when the latter rotated with extreme rapidity and was still viscous. Once definitely separated, the earth and its child, the moon, began to react through their gravitation by mutually raising tides whereby they drew one another out into oblong forms while at the same time each rotated rapidly on its own axis. The tidal forces of the moon acted as a brake on the rotation of the earth, while the tidal force of the earth similarly retarded the rotation of the moon.

But, as has been shown by calculation, the retarding effect produced by the earth on the moon's rotation must have been nearly 500,000 times greater than that produced by the moon on the earth's rotation. In consequence of this difference the moon's rotation was quickly destroyed, while the earth's remained relatively little affected. At the same time the tides reacted in another way by driving the two bodies farther asunder.

By the time that the moon had retreated to something like its present distance from the earth its rotation had become synchronous with its revolution, while it is possible that its cooling frame "set" into a permanently oblong shape, the axis of the figure pointing toward the earth and the centre of gravity being also displaced earthward. This state of affairs, it is plain, would tend to keep the rotation time coincident with the time of revolution.

Course of Waves

That tidal friction is no mere figment of the scientific imagination will be readily understood by anybody who has ever been in a place where a heavy tidal wave, or bore, is driven upon a coast, over a gradually shallowing bottom and between narrowing shore lines. The general course of a tidal wave is against the direction of the earth's rotation. It is like a brake pressed by the moon against the periphery of the spinning globe.
